

FOOD CAMPAIGN URGED BY PATTON

People Should Raise More Foodstuffs and All Surplus Should Be Canned

Secretary of Agriculture Patton, following the suggestion made at the opening meeting of the Committee of Safety by Health Commissioner Dixon and President Sparks, of the State College, has issued a proclamation in which he urges the farmers of the state to raise more food crops this season and that everybody can and preserve foods for next winter in as large quantities as possible.

"Facing such conditions, it is necessary to start a strenuous campaign of education of all the facts in order to bring about much-needed relief in the way of farm products, home gardens, back lot gardens and any other method which will bring about a more ample food supply. It does not seem to me that there should be any fear of an overproduction, as the extreme shortage that is bound to occur in some lines will take care of any extra large production in other lines.

"We are informed that there will be a shortage of approximately one billion tin cans and I would call upon all the housewives to save all of the glass jars they may have on hand and to fill them with such food commodities that can be carried into the winter. If each household will fill a few jars with vegetables and fruits it will mean the saving of thousands of jars of food materials.

"On the farms we will have the labor problem to contend with, but unless the resources are too heavily drawn upon by war I would call upon all merchants, manufacturers and employers of labor to spare one or more men one day each week to help in the nearby rural districts so that the lack of help may not retard the farmer in putting forth his very best effort for maximum production. The farmers will be glad to pay for this help if it is obtainable. Such help can also be tendered in communities where gardening has been taken up on a large scale and where labor is needed. In addition every man, woman and child should be instructed to look seriously into the future and boom the utilizing of all yards, lots or any place possible for the planting of and care in raising for their own use and for marketing all kinds of vegetables, both for spot consumption and winter use, thereby helping to curtail in some important lines the high or higher cost of living. Even were we not on the verge of war such matters should be seriously considered, but under present conditions they cannot be given even as serious consideration as is necessary.

"The watchword of the day is 'Preparedness' and the unlimited care and raising of vegetables at such a period certainly comes under that heading. Such facts and advice should be daily promulgated in the newspapers throughout the United States."

TRY A HORSE PORTERHOUSE

Think of buying all the fine meat cuts, from roundsteak to porterhouse, at from six to fifteen cents a pound. It can be done; it is being done. There are Italians, Norwegians, Germans and Swiss in New York who are paying no more than fifteen cents a pound for the choicest steaks. And they are getting meat which for palatability and nutritive value is far above most of the beef tenderloins and sirloins we consume. The prevailing price of thirty-two and thirty-six cents a pound. It is no beef that these wise foreigners are eating, but horse meat.

The very mention of horse flesh is unpleasant—not because one out of a thousand knows what it tastes like, but because we love the horse and therefore dislike to eat him. Yet the horse is perhaps our cleanest animal, remarks the Popular Science Monthly. He eats clean food, lives in a clean environment, and keeps himself clean. He is practically free from tuberculosis and many other serious diseases to which our flesh-producing animals are subject. Notwithstanding this, however, we continue to make beefsteak a staple food product, despite the exorbitant prices at which it is sold.

BOTH PARTIES TO FIGHT ON CAUCUS

Republicans and Democrats Have Many Points to Smooth Out

Washington, D. C., March 30.—Factional battle flags were hoisted last night in both Democratic and Republican camps in preparation for the conferences to-day and Saturday over House organization plans. The Republicans are divided along many lines. While it now is generally conceded that the party will put a full ticket in the field, the Progressive, bipartisan, temporary organization and anti-Mann factions are expected to have much to say before a program is finally agreed upon.

Democrats face a serious problem in the announced opposition of Representative Gallivan, of Massachusetts, a "wet" insurgent, generally credited with a score of followers, to the organization plan for reselecting old committee chairmen and advancing other committeemen to chairmanships under the seniority rule.

Arriving here to-day, Mr. Gallivan announced that while he would support Speaker Clark for re-election, he would not go into the Democratic caucus, would oppose the Democratic organization committee plan and would further urge the naming of several Republicans to committee chairmanships. Thus far he has not conferred with any other so-called insurgents, but he said to-night he thought "one or two of the boys" would be with him in his fight.

"I am unalterably opposed to the southern Democrats remaining in the saddle throughout the coming Congress," Mr. Gallivan said. "I fear that enough Democrats may follow the Massachusetts member to upset party plans are based largely upon his success during the closing days of the last session in defeating a judgeship retirement bill earnestly desired by Southern Democrats."

Democrats will caucus to-morrow afternoon and a complete organization plan will be worked out. Unless expected changes are made, the tentative arrangements for making committee assignments probably will be adopted.

TALK FOR YOUNG FOLKS

FINE KIDNEY MEDICINE FOR OLD PEOPLE

This is to state that for the past seven years that I have been in the drug business your Swamp-Root has been in great demand especially by the aged. Three years ago I kept the drug store on Eighteenth avenue and Sixty-third street, opposite which was a home for aged men. The inmates of the home were steady customers of this wonderful remedy which relieved them of various afflictions of the kidneys and bladder. In the majority of cases it was used for rheumatism, after other remedies had failed to give them even temporary relief. These people spoke very highly of its merits and I will recommend it to others with great pleasure, being confident of its results.

Very truly yours,

Prove What Swamp-Root Will Do For You
Send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample size bottle. It will convince anyone. You will also receive a booklet of valuable information, telling about the kidneys and bladder. When writing, be sure and mention the Harrisburg Daily Telegraph. Regular fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles for sale at all drug stores.

March Shipping Losses Less Than February's

London, March 30.—The figures for British shipping losses from submarines in the first eighteen days of December, January, February and March were given as follows to-day in the house of commons by Thomas J. MacNamara, financial secretary to the admiralty:
December, 30; January, 26; February, 66; March 55.

FRENCH PUSH ON WITH NEW VIGOR

From a Staff Correspondent of The Associated Press With the French Armies On the French Front, March 29.—The progress of the French advance in the vicinity of Coucy-le-Chateau, now firmly in French hands, continued methodically to-day. Both cavalry and infantry are keeping in the closest touch with the Germans and forcing them to hasten the speed of their retreat.

From the strength and thorough preparation of the German defensive works, it was evident that a longer stand was intended. The castle of Coucy-le-Chateau, a unique historical monument, which ten days ago, although dismantled, was intact as constructed by Enguerrand III in the Thirteenth Century, was found by The Associated Press correspondent when he visited it to-day to be a mere heap of stones. The French officer, who was the first to enter the fortress, told the story of its capture on Tuesday.

French in Pursuit
The French pursuing column, it appears, first sighted the castle from a long distance on March 21. While the French were approaching, the castle seemed to rise in the air and then, after an awe-inspiring explosion, evolved into dust, which covered the trees and grass all around with a white limestone deposit. The French patrols came nearer and found the ruins still held by the Germans and the surrounding glacis and low-lying lands swept by many machine guns.

The French, undaunted, brought into play clever tactics which eventually enabled them to carry the castle by assault. A young lieutenant, with a number of comrades, effected an entrance through ruined houses to the fortified village, which had clung about the castle walls for many centuries and drove out the German defenders. What object the Germans could have had in destroying this relic remains a mystery, as the castle was useless in modern warfare. Cardinal Mazarin, during the reign of Louis XIV, once tried to demolish it when the castle served as a rallying point for feudalists. Its walls were in some places thirty-four feet in thickness. The entire surrounding country has been laid waste. The correspondent passed over the site of what has once been the flourishing villages of Polembray, Guny, Troisy-Loire, St. Aubin, Bierancourt and Cuts and over hundreds of acres of sawn-down orchards, while at the water's edge on the Oise-Aisne canal he saw a number of barges burned to the water's edge.
