MAJESTIC—Vaudeville.

COLONIAL—"Back of the Man."

REGENT—"Miss George Washington."

To-night, at the Orpheum Theater, David Belasco will present his new comedy success "Seven Chances" which is the first year in New York with the original Belasco Theater production and cast intact. "Seven Chances" was written by Roi Cooper Megrue, whom theatergoers will recall as the author of "Under Cover" and "Under Fire," and co-author of "It Pays to Advertise."

In "Seven Chances," Mr. Megrue has taken for his central character a young bachelor and confirmed womanizer, who is obliged to marry within twenty-four hours to gain possession of a large fortune left by his grandfather. Even with the prospect of so much wealth he finds it difficult to secure a wife and is refused by seven different girls. Of course, there is one girl whom he really falls in love with and whom he eventually wins just in time to secure the fortune.

Fresh from its history-making run of one full calendar year to crowded houses of delighted theatergoers at the Casino Theater, "The Blue Paradise," the most delightful and popular of recent operettas, will be presented by the Messrs. Shubert at the Orpheum to-morrow, matinee and night. The story is told in two acts and a prologue, the first being laid at the picturesque Blue Paradise Inn on the outskirts of Vienna. Rudolph Stodger, a popular youth, is having a farewell party, prior to his departure for America to make his bid for fortune.

BOY SCOUTS HERE GETTING READY

Will Probably Be Called on For Lookout Duty; Harris Street Troop Is Growing

Troop No. 7, Boy Scouts of America, recently organized at the Harris Street Evangelical Church under the leadership of Scoutmaster Jerome R. Miller, an ex-member of the Governor's Troop, will take their first hike of the season to-morrow.

The hikes are intended to stimulate a love of nature, to teach careful observation of plant and animal life, as well as tests of endurance and self-reliance. The boys are now being drilled in lessons on first aid to the injured, and already several have passed with good percentage.

It is the aim of the organization to be helpful in many ways in the home, church and elsewhere, and to develop the boys mentally, physically and morally.

Mapping Out War Plans

All over the country the Boy Scouts are mapping out "war plans." Following a call from the committee on coast defense, a meeting was held yesterday in national headquarters in New York city, to discuss plans for helping in the preparedness movement, and to sound the opinion of the various heads of scout organizations as to what stand should be taken.

Will Not Be Exposed

It is planned to use the Boy Scouts as lookouts, messengers and for other scouting service all over the country in the event of war. They will not be armed or exposed to any danger in actual fighting, should there be any, but will act with the regular coast guards, as an unarmed patrol. Scout masters familiar with the work and with boy life will be in charge of each unit, and tentative plans have been made in many of the large cities to insure that each boy will not lose any of his school work, as that will be a part of the daily routine.

From the number of scouts available, it is estimated that each troop will have to serve only one week in ten. They will be on lookout guard four hours with twelve hours off. The plans under way providing for a three length of the Atlantic coast. Several Pennsylvania units will undoubtedly be called upon to watch the rivers.

INSTITUTE WILL TRAIN ITS MEN

Rose Polytechnic Makes Compulsory Military Training

Terre Haute, Ind., March 30.—Compulsory military training for freshmen and sophomores of the Rose Polytechnic Institute will be inaugurated next month under the direction of Captain A. L. Kessling, of the U. S. army.

The course in military training will be installed not only with the approval of the faculty, but of the students as well. A recent referendum showed the student body to be practically unanimous in favor of the "preparedness" move. While the work is not required of juniors and seniors, yet many of the large cities to have volunteered to enter the drill corps at the local engineering college.

No additional periods will be added to the schedule this year, at least, the faculty voting to increase the three hours drill a week for time now given over to other subjects. In addition to the usual drill, the course will include lectures on military history by Captain Kessling. Special attention will be given this spring to the training of upperclass men as officers for the drill corps in future years.

Final action is to be taken on permanent establishment of military training in the institute's curriculum must be postponed until the government has definitely formulated its policy regarding such work in the colleges and universities of the country. Rose has students enough to obtain a commissioned officer assigned permanently to such duty. Due, however, to the lack of available officers, the work will be carried on for the present by Captain Kessling, who is in charge of army recruiting in this district.

The institute faculty has appointed a committee to co-operate with the National Council of Research in promotion of scientific study and investigation, with a special view of aiding in preparation for national defense. Through its acting president, Dr. John White, Rose recently offered to the National Government the use of the institute's laboratories and shops and the services of its faculty, subject to government call.

British Tommies Parade on Deck of Sinking Ship

London, March 29.—The British transport Tyndareus, with a battalion of the Middlesex Regiment aboard, struck a mine on February 9 off Cape Agulhas, the southernmost point of Africa. The men were paraded on deck and after a roll call began to sing, while they waited for the ship to sink.

The Tyndareus, however, was saved and the troops were transferred to two rescuing steamers having upheld, as expressed in the official Admiralty report, "the cherished tradition of the British head."

The Admiralty issued last night the following statement on the incident: "The Admiralty transport Tyndareus, with a battalion of the Middlesex Regiment aboard, struck a mine off Cape Agulhas. A strong southwesterly gale was blowing and immediately after the explosion the ship began to settle by the head with propellers out of the water."

"Assembly" was sounded and the men donned lifebelts and paraded in perfect order. Roll was called and response on the order "Stand easy," the whole battalion began to sing.

"Two steamers, dispatched to the rescue, arrived on the scene within half an hour. During this trying time, although faced by the probability of imminent death, the troops maintained steadfast courage and discipline. Never was the tradition of the British army more worthily upheld than on this occasion."

"Thanks to the devotion and perseverance of the captain and the officers the ship was saved. The troops were transferred to the two steamers and taken to Simonstown, where the Tyndareus subsequently returned under her own steam with two holds flooded and another leaking."

Search For Woman to Whom Circus Man Left Fortune of $200,000

Kansas City, Mo., March 30.—Somewhere in Kansas City there is a Sarah K. Wilson who is $200,000 richer today than she thinks she is because of a circus man's memory of something in his past, tinged with sawdust-ring romance.

In an almost forgotten locker at the Scottish Rite temple there was found a bit of paper on which Charles D. Hageman, one of the owners of the Hagenbeck-Wallace Circus, who died unexpectedly Sunday in Mansfield, O., had written his will. In a few words the will left the whole of the Hageman fortune, estimated at $200,000, largely invested in Kansas City apartment houses, to "Sarah K. Wilson, of Kansas City."

Who Sarah K. Wilson is, whether a relative, a sweetheart of circus days, or a friend who had been kind to him, no one seems to know. Hageman, who was 60 years old, left no family. It is not even known where he spent his childhood. He came to Kansas City a number of years ago, when he partially abandoned "the road" and lived part of the time at the Scottish Rite Temple and part of the time at the Hotel Baltimore.

His friends have been limited to the associates of earlier days, when he graduated from a clown into a circus proprietor. None of these friends have been able to reveal the identity of Sarah K. Wilson. Hageman had gone to Mansfield from Kansas City to meet a circus friend just starting out from winter quarters when he was stricken with heart failure.

Red Blood for Pale People!

A big supply of red blood corpuscles is what helps to make any man or woman have a healthy, pink complexion and cherry red lips. Rosort to paint and powder are totally unnecessary and besides that, are harmful. Three-grain hypo-nucleate tablets, if used regularly for several months, seem to create a greatly added number of millions of the red and white corpuscles of the blood, and not only improve the color, but aid in increased flesh to the thin and frail body. These tablets promote assimilation, absorption and digestion, and thus transform the complexion and figure. They are prescribed by physicians, but being of a perfectly harmless character, self-administration is being followed by many, who obtain them direct from any well-stocked apothecary shop.—Adv.

"blame good tobacco"

YOU smokers certainly are strong for Burley tobacco; sixty million pounds poured out of those green, blue and red boxes last year.

You like to call it "blame good tobacco." Tastes fine in a cigarette, doesn't it?

But you couldn't buy your real Burley cigarette. Because Burley tobacco, shredded for "made" cigarettes, always lost its flavor; couldn't be held.

But an entirely new principle in cigarette making did it. Now you have Lucky Strike, the real Burley cigarette.

The tobacco—it's toasted; that does it. Think of toast, buttered hot. That idea certainly leads you right up to buying LUCKY STRIKE, the real Burley cigarette.
