Three-Mile Island School

Marietta, Pa., April 3.—As a result of the removal recently of one of two families from the Three Mile Island in the Susquehanna river, above Bainbridge, the little school house to cated on the island has now but one scholar, the other pupil going away with the family. This gives the school house the distinction of being the smallest school in point of attendance in existence. During the ice gorge the school was closed and the teacher went home, but is back again. All the comforts are enjoyed there just as though there were many scholars attending.

who has made St. Louis famous by reason of the quality of its school buildings, and ask him to design the Gary schools.

It ought to be explained that in such schools as are operated under Mr. Wirt's methods outside appearance is of far less importance than economy of space, completeness of equipment, perfection of heating and ventilation, and the broadest possible provision for the welfare of the scholars.

It was this sort of schools that Mr. Wirt found in St. Louis, and the Board of Education in that city therefore arranged with William B. Ither to design its new schools nine years ago, and he has continued since in a close relation to these schools.

Mr. J. Horace MacFarland,
Municipal League of Harrisburg,
Harrisburg, Pa.:

Dear Sir—

Mr. Ittner's work in Gary has been entirely satisfactory during the entire time of his employment, extending over the past nine years.

He has initiative and is exceptionally resourceful in suggestions as well as carrying out the purposes that the executives of the school system have in mind in the construction of the building.

Sincerely yours,
WILLIAM WIRT,
Supt. of Schools.

Making Additional Plans
The telegram below from George M.
Hunter, president of the Gary School Board, shows that not only has Mr. Ittner been employed for nine years, but is now working on plans for two additional buildings.

That Harrisburg has not had the best ditional buildings.

That Harrisburg has not had the best in educational facilities is well known. That it ought to have, all would agree. That it can have, if advantage is taken of the experience of other cities, is certain. Schools of as good quality as is the filtration and park work and as is the filtration and park work and paving and general engineering of Harrisburg are due the people. These schools can be had upon expert advice. They cannot be had by a continuance of the methods under which our schools have not attained the efficiency due to our people.

The special committee of the School Board has acted wisely in recommending for the carrying out of the new program the school architect whose work has been found so exceedingly satisfactory in many American cities.
