THE TRIUMPH OF LIFE

Terse Comments on the Uniform Prayer Meeting Topic of the Young People's Societies—Christian Endeavor, Etc.—For April 8: "The Significance of Easter."—1 Corinthians 15:50-58.

By William T. Ellis

Easter is the day of triumph. It tells of stones rolled away, of obstacles overcome, of sin and the grave mastered, and of the great victory which is synonymous with life.

Christ's triumph over death is a guarantee of our triumph over sin. Because He has won, we may win.

Arise, O Soul, this Easter Day! The Lord is risen! Forget the tomb of yesterday; The Lord is risen!

The full truth of the life beyond the grave is known only to those who have passed through the strait gate called death.

Since the first Easter, there is no real reason for fearing death. He is only the slave that opens the door to the King's presence.

Easter is best kept by a rising from some dead past into newness of life.

The Christian religion is pitched on an ascending scale. It begins with an emancipation, and it ends with an ascension.

When hung as a banner, the stars should be in the upper left corner. If hung with the stripes perpendicular, the stars should be at the upper right hand corner.

Here's Way to Fly Flag!

Fly the flag on its own staff—not with another flag. Do not display it before sunrise or after dark. Put it up higher than your head.

HAIR COMING OUT?

Dandruff causes a feverish irritation of the scalp, the hair roots shrink, loosen and then the hair comes out loose.

SOCIETY KILLS PERSONALITY

Small Talk Causes One to Lose Their Individuality After a Time

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

"I don't know what to say at certain times," writes Josie. "I have taken books on etiquette in the hope of obtaining, erig, but they harp on high-class society manners with butlers and maids, which are not my requirements."

Personality lies within the nature of its possessor. To go about in society is more likely to kill it than to cultivate it.

Good manners are nothing more or less than the art of making things things. To be kind and considerate of others and to forget yourself almost guarantees "manner" of a sort superior to the average.

bowls. We keep our eyes open and see first of all that to do so would be awkward, and secondly, that to do so would be very conspicuous in a world where such things "are not done."

Graciousness is the whole keynote of manners. To rise when you are introduced to some one is gracious. Therefore the girl who stands when someone is introducing a man to her need never feel self-conscious, in spite of the fact that it is customary to remain seated under those circumstances.

When the door bell rings the hostess goes to the door to greet her guest. Do not wait for your guest at the door? How do you greet the unknown escort of a girl you know? How do you introduce them? How do you take leave of them?

After the hostess has taken charge of the garments which belong to her guests or has ushered them into possible adjoining rooms where they can arrange their costumes a bit, she escorts them to the young people who have already arrived and presents the girl first, mentioning the names of every one there, so that there will be no awkwardness, and then presents the man to the group without stopping to repeat all of the names.

Things may be done in a far more elaborate fashion than this, but to be simple and easy and to see that no one else is embarrassed or left out in the cold is far more important than to concern yourself with your own embarrassment.

When guests depart, it is again a kindly, simple thing to escort them to the door and not leave them to find their own way out, as the usage of formal society allows.
