Disinfection by Soaking in Corrosive Sublimite Is Being Recommended

Washington, D. C., April 6.—The disinfection of seed potatoes by soaking in corrosive sublimite or formaldehyde is recommended by the U. S. Department of Agriculture...

How to Disinfect Seed It is considered better to treat potatoes before they are put into seed, especially if the cut seed is to be very small...

Clearly, therefore, the most important precaution against these diseases is to select clean, disease-free seed potatoes from healthy, vigorous plants...

The uniformity of the benefits to all cases of weakness has indeed given me confidence to speak a generous word for this unequalled product."

NO ONE REALLY INDEPENDENT. If You Rise or Fall Your Actions Affect Some One Either Close or Remote.

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX. No one of us ever stood (or fell) alone. When you go up there are always some to mount with you, and when you sink there are some to be bruised or injured by your fall.

Of course, when you were a little kiddie you built card houses—perhaps you are still doing it. At all events, you must remember how carefully you placed the two plane surfaces so they would support each other and stand in delicate adjustment.

Suppose you are rushing to get a subway train and in your rude hurry you knock some one out of your path. Perhaps a bundle falls from his arms and the precious eggs he is carrying home to a sick wife are broken.

Life is like that—you actually cannot hurry to make the train without affecting other people. Of course, you do not always deprive an invalid of sustenance, but you do have some effect on life about you.

No one is really entirely independent. All humans are interdependent on each other. The contractor who puts up a house is carrying out the plans of the architect, and his plans in turn are carried out by masons and carpenters and numerous members of a completely interdependent each other.

Not only are we dependent on each other, none of us is competent enough to do all the things we need to have done in order that we may enjoy our present state of civilization.

The happiest man is the one who has a complete and vivid sense of the real fellowship of mankind. Not only do we depend on people to bring us food and make our clothes and run the conveyances which transport us to and from work, but we are dependent on people for an abundance of mind. Sometimes a friendly greeting from a newsboy gives you a feeling of buoyancy and happiness.

A mood may be conveyed to you from the least of the people with whom you deal as well as from the greatest. A little buoyancy of spirit comes to you often from the friendly feeling of the boy who says "Good morning" cheerfully when he carries you up in your elevator.

How can any of us feel independent when, for the means of locomotion we depend on others? How can any of us dare call himself independent when his very moods may be changed by the attitude of any of the people with whom he deals?

It is not entirely weak to be glad because of a friendly greeting, although it would be sadly weak to permit yourself to be unhappy because of an unkind attitude. But it pays to remember that in the world where the mood of a clerk in a store or a conductor on a street car or a paying teller in a bank conveys itself to you so vividly there is such a thing as real fellowship.

Mark Twain once said: "Be as independent as you like; but if you are a tall, be a logical tall and don't try to wag the dog." Most of us are tails and the world is the dog! It wouldn't be logical to expect our whims or fancies to rule the world, and it is equally illogical to boast about the independence which none of us can really possess.

ALKALI MAKES SOAP Bad For Washing Hair. Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali, which is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

The best thing to use is just plain purified coconut oil, for this is pure and entirely greaseless. It's very cheap, and beats the most expensive soap or anything else all to pieces. You can get this at any drug store, and a few ounces will last the whole family for months.

Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in, about a teaspoonful is all that is needed. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, cleanses thoroughly, and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy, wavy and easy to handle. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff.
