ROMANCE AMONG NEEDS OF LIFE
 Existence Grows Weary and Monotonous Without Some Excitement
 By Beatrice Fairfax
 Just as surely as the human body cannot exist without food, so surely the spirit must die if it never feeds upon romance.
 Romance does not mean love or love-making. It means instead a certain feeling of uplift, a certain drinking in of beauty, a kind of idealization which gives kinship with all beauty. Romance is nothing more than a perfect mood, a delicate atmosphere. It is a fabric as gossamer-like as that of which dreams are made. And yet it is so true that when it exists we are most fully alive.
 When a great man dies tradition gathers about his name and with romantically beautiful stories we dedicate his passing to history.

 They say that Funston, war hero and patriot, was listening to the strains of "The Beautiful Blue Danube" just before his passing, and that his last words were "How beautiful it is!"
 Of Charles Frohman, hero of the Lusitania, it is well known that these were the last thoughts to which he gave expression: "Why fear death? It is the most beautiful adventure of life."
 And as far back in history as the days of the Scottish chiefs, there are these words quoted: "Charge, Chester, Charge! On Stanley, on!" were the last words of Marjion. In these words Sir Walter Scott gave his testimony for the romantic bravery with which we all like to invest the passing of heroes.
 Often when children tell fanciful tales and are reproved for lying they are merely expressing their human heritage of romance. The lover who tells his sweetheart—with a great deal of poetic license—that she is the only girl he ever loved, is not a liar, he is merely romantic a bit.
 He likes to feel that now at last that wonderful thing, real love, has come to him and that nothing he ever thought before was worthy of the name.

 Romance puts jam on your bread and butter; it brightens up a rickety tenement; it gives inspiration to a dull job. Without imagination, without a certain refinement and delicacy of feeling, one can hardly be romantic.
 After all, when Christopher Columbus tried to persuade Spain that the world was not flat and that a new passage to India was possible by a circling of the globe, he was rather a practical romanticist than merely a scientist and explorer. He had dreamed a dream and he brought all his mental science and logical faculties to bear on making that dream come true.
 Every explorer, every inventor, every founder of a great school of philosophy is romantic. Perhaps inspiration comes to him, perhaps he longs to help humanity, perhaps he longs to help humankind by the beauty of the world about him; but, whatever inspires him, it leads to a practical demonstration of great value.
 The woman who sits stitching at a heavy factory machine does better, not worse, work because in her heart there are dreams. The only thing that makes it possible for us to perform the daily drudgeries of life is the hope for better things which blooms in our hearts.

 Hope is romance! Ambition is romance! All the fine, true inspirations of life are romantic. Romance leads to achievement, unless it blossoms in the mind of a lazy, shiftless creature who is almost incapable of action. And it saves even such a man from being a mere brute who idles through his days or who drifts into evil.
 The man who leads a forlorn hope is romantic. The hero who gives his life fighting a dread disease to which he succumbs, but against which he has insured humanity, is romantic. Romance is the thing which makes it worth while for men to sacrifice material comforts and die on strange fields of honor.
 In a materialistic world, where we have to deal with the facts of earning our livings and fighting for place and position, the thing which lifts us above blind instinct is romance. Cherish your dreams, for they give you a glimpse of beauty and make you willing to struggle over cruel mountains and harsh plains to achievement. Dreams give respite from reality that is cruel and coarse, and urge on to reality that is big and fine.
 Romance is the force which urges us all on to the realization of our ne-desires and to the conquering of the unworthy.

EARLE CLOUSER DIES
 Shiremanstown, Pa., April 6.—Word was received here yesterday of the death of Earle Clouser, who died in New Mexico, of tuberculosis. He is survived by his wife and two daughters, Ruth and Helen Clouser. Mr. Clouser was a former resident of this place, having left here several months ago and traveling to various health resorts. He was a talented musician and took part in several entertainments held here.
FRENCH HAVE NEW BALLOON
 Paris, April 4.—Among the latest triumphs of the French aerial service is a new observation balloon known as Le Caquot. At the beginning of the war observers other than those in aeroplanes utilized kite balloons of the German Drachen type, called by the French soldiers "sausages." There are still some of these in use at the front but Le Caquot is much preferred. In shape it resembles a great saddle. Whereas the Drachen is inconvenienced by a wind of from 50 to 55 feet a second, Le Caquot can remain in the air unless the wind exceeds 65 to 75 feet a second.

WILL ASSIST AT CANTATA
 Shiremanstown, Pa., April 6.—William A. Clouser, music director and chorister, will assist with the Easter cantata in Trindle Springs Lutheran Church on Sunday.
You Need Not Succumb To That "All-Run-Down" Feeling
 Simply Cleanse Your Blood of Its Sluggishness So Prevent In Springtime.
 Possibly you are one of the thousands who just at this season find that you are losing your appetite, your system gets weaker day by day, you are easily tired, and a general good-for-nothing, run-down feeling seems to pervade your whole body. This condition is very general at the beginning of Spring, and is nature's appeal for help in preparing the system for the change in seasons. Your blood is sluggish and impoverished, impurities begin to clog up the arteries, and your system needs a general-purifying-and-housecleaning to put it in ship-shape for the coming summer.

 Just now the best investment you can make is to take a few bottles of S. S. S., the great blood purifier and tonic. This purely vegetable remedy has been in general use for more than fifty years, and thousands use it regularly every Spring. It has no equal for thoroughly cleansing the blood of all impurities, improving the appetite and toning up and giving renewed life and vigor to the whole body. Go to your druggist and get a bottle today and start early on the important work of putting your system in tip-top shape.
