A bill introduced by Senator Martin, of Philadelphia, makes the wilful neglect by parents of children born out of wedlock a misdemeanor, punishable by a fine of $500 or a year's imprisonment. False statements as to the parentage of such children are punishable by similar fine and imprisonment. The act applies to cases of neglect now existing as well as to acts in violation of the proposed law in the future.

"It has no been shown me that they are denied any equal protection under the present law and if they can demonstrate in the next two years that alaw now in operation is not fair to them and to their employes it will be the duty of all officials to do justly by them. Until then the matter should remain as it is."

The officials of the railroads operating in Pennsylvania profess confidence in their ability o now convince the Governor that the full crew act of 1911 has not worked fairly to them, but the general opinion prevails at the Capitol that the Governor is likely to veto the new "repealer" if the Legislature passes it.

Points in Repealer
The repealing measure states: "The commission shall have the power and authority to determine in the manner prescribed by the said act whether any railroad corporation as defined in said act is operating any train without a sufficient and adequate number of men, and in the event that it should determine that the number so employed is sufficient, having regard to the safe operation of the train, to make an order, which shall be enforceable in the same manner as other orders of the commission, specifying and defining the number of men to be employed on said train."

New Jersey Expects Its Citizens to Aid Food Production Movement

Trenton, N. J., April 11. — Governor Edge announced to-day that New Jersey was prepared to accept a loan of large estates which would be placed under cultivation to increase the nation's food supply.

"Recruiting is imperative," the Governor said, "but so is enlarged production of farm staples. The man who actually aids the State in increasing the agricultural output this year is performing the same high type of patriotic service as the soldier in the trenches."

It is the Governor's purpose to turn into food producing areas many of the estates which have been proffered for military purposes.
