four times as much ground. This meant not only ultimate victory: it meant victory is going to be won at less loss, and our chances are growing as our equipment is improving, and the Germans know it. That is the explanation of the despair which has driven them to black piracy on the high sea."

War Not Yet Over

Dealing with the effort of the government to make the country self-supporting the premier said that as a result of the guarantees to the farmer and the farm laborer a million fresh acres of land had been brought under cultivation, which was equal to producing two million tons of food. "I do not say that the war is going to continue through 1918," Mr. Lloyd George went on, "but we must take no chances. We have taken far too many. If the German knew that by holding out until the end of 1918 he could win, he would hold out, but if he knows that the longer he holds out the worse it will be for him, peace will come much earlier."

Referring to Ireland, the premier safe: "We must convert Ireland from a suspicious, surly, dangerous neighbor to a cheerful, loyal comrade. Settlement of the Irish question is essential for the peace of the world and esential to a speedy victory in the war. I appeal to the patriotism of all men to sink everything for the one purpose of getting this question on the way."

"The constant/irritation and mucuous had so upset my stomach that I could not eat anything without terrible distress afterwards from the pressure of the gas that would form and fill me up."

"I couldn't sleep, I had headache almost all the time and I was nervous, irritable and had to fairly force myself to attend to my work.

"Finally I was persuaded to give Tanlac a trial and I am now free to say that it is really a wonder worker, for it certainly fixed me up in fine shape.

"Now I can eat anything with relish and enjoyment. I sleep like a top and wake up refreshed and rested and I do not suffer from headaches as I used to."
