

LOCAL OVERLAND DEALERS DRIVING CARS FROM FACTORY

Because of the serious shortage of freight cars, Carl Hanson and J. R. W. Hunter, local distributors for Overland and Willys-Knight cars, together with sixty dealers and salesmen from local territory, made the trip to Toledo, Ohio, where the factory is located, got a consignment of sixty cars and drove them overland to Harrisburg, going by way of Cleveland, Youngstown and Pittsburgh. The above illustrations were made at the time the local men were leaving the factory.

Uses Motorcycle With Sidevan For Delivery

Yes, there is always something new under the sun if we are only keen enough to look around a bit. For example, an enterprising oyster house in Kansas City now uses a special metal sidevan attached to a motorcycle to deliver trays of oyster cocktails to cafes, soda fountains and restaurants.

The van is partitioned off so that trays containing a dozen oyster cocktails in separate glass containers holding a dozen oysters each and their condiments, are easily and safely carried. Each separate container holds a little less than half a pint.

The company reports that the delivery system is giving great satisfaction, and that the celerity with which orders can be handled has had a decidedly favorable effect on business.

PRECEDENTS IN COMPENSATION

Two Rulings Made by State Board in Regard as to What Shall Be Employment

Two rulings on the subject of what can be classed as within the designation of service of an employer have been handed down by the State Workmen's Compensation act which will serve as precedents in cases.

In the claim of Mrs. Emanuel C. Rhoads, Pottstown, against the Philadelphia and Reading railway, for compensation for the death of her husband, it was found that he was killed while crossing tracks after leaving his train to go home. The board says that the man was compelled to leave his train in a yard and comments: "When an employe at the conclusion of his day's work must leave a dangerous place and in order to reach his home is compelled to pass over other property of the employer and is killed, it does not lie in the mouth of the employer to say that maps and measurements show that if this employe had adopted some other route he might have escaped this injury. Compensation laws do not contemplate such hard and fast rules nor do they countenance defenses of such refined reasoning." We agree with the referee that the deceased was still under the protection of our law.

The claim of the widow of Henry P. Siglin, of Scranton, for compensation for the death of her husband is upheld. Siglin was thrown from an automobile and killed after he had given up his seat in the car to allow women to ride. The board says: "It cannot be said that because he was standing on the running board engaged in conversation with the two young women that he was thereby taken from the course of his employment. There was nothing for him to do in his employment at that time but to ride back to his employer's business in the automobile of the defendant. For the purposes of administration of this law it is perfectly immaterial where in so riding he stood in the automobile."

PAIGE
The Most Beautiful Car in America

The Final Test of Quality

It is a matter of record in fifteen of the principal cities that Paige Used Cars bring a higher price—proportionate to first cost—than any other American automobiles. And here, after all is said and done, is the final test of quality. A Used Car has been "through the mill." Its motor and all of its working parts have been subjected to constant strain. Its "finish" has been knocked off—if it will come off at all. Its gears, its rear axle and its transmission have endured the punishment of day-in and day-out pounding. All of its weakness is plainly evident and likewise its strength. The Used Car either stands before you a broken down, dispirited "has-been," or a strong, robust champion of many battles—ready and eager for all the service that man can give it. That, we repeat, is the final test of quality. In this test the Paige stands supreme. After fifteen—twenty-five—thirty-five thousand miles of service, there is still enough goodness left in a Paige to command a record price in used car markets. Frankly, now, is there anything that we could tell you about our product that would be more convincing? Could you have any better guarantee that a Paige is all that we claim it to be—all that you could possibly expect it to be? As to the selection of a model, this is merely a matter of your own personal requirements. In our line there are two seven-passenger cars, a five-passenger car, two roadsters and a complete line of enclosed cars. You alone can make a choice, but please remember that you cannot make a mistake. For all these models are Paiges—blood-brothers of the same strain. That is the really important thing. But don't lose any time. Come in and inspect the Paige line today. Let us give you the kind of demonstration that will definitely settle your automobile problem, and place your order while you can secure an early delivery.
