propriations to the Department of Labor and Industry are now being considered and that it is vital that the appropriation to the Department of Labor and Industry be maintained for the benefit of industry and the workers throughout the state. He reviewed the work done by the department during the last year, and paid a tribute to President Maurer, and the Pennsylvania Federation of Labor for its co-operative aid of the Department of Labor and Industry.

Mrs. Samuel Semple, a member of the State Industrial Board, spoke of the necessity of maintaining the present laws affecting women during the crisis. She urged upon the men present to do everything possible that laws might be maintained whereby the future mothers of the race might not be physically affected and castoff as worthless product of the great industrial machine when it had no further use for them.

She reminded them of the fact that at the present time one-fifth of the workers in Pennsylvania were women and unless this great body of women were protected in health and morals the nation must continue to pay the penalty as long as the nation exists.

Peter Sunnenschein reviewed the history of the oMoney case in San Francisco, and endeavored to show the innocence of those whom he declared had been "railroaded."

Raps Food Speculators

After the regular routine business, James H. Maurer, president of the Federation, launched into an explanation of the high cost of living, rapping especially the food speculators who are now endeavoring to profit by the misfortunes of others and at this very moment he said are cornering the supply of coal and the very essentials of life.

He declared the factors responsible for the high cost of living were threefold and enumerated them as follows: First: Falling off of imports.

Second: Increased European exports.

Third: Speculation in our food supplies by a horde of native parasites.

The European War made the falling off of imports unavoidable, but exporting our food could have been avoided, ha dCongress seen fit to do so. Speculation in food should be abolished by the government taking possession of our food supplies until normal conditions again prevail.

REVENUE BILL PASSES IN STYLE

H. N. Askin to Be Installed as Direct Inheritance Tax Meas ure Goes Through House Without Dissent

The first of the big revenue raising

The first of the big revenue raising bills to go through, passed the House at last night's session. It was the Woodward bill, which is designed to raise $5,000,000 annually by a 2 per cent. tax on direct inheritances. The bill is favored by legislative leaders and it is predicted that it will pass the Senate.

The Catlin Senate bill to create a state commission to license and supervise boxing and wrestling contests, was passed 126 to 28. The bill calls for a state commission of three to be named by the governor to issue state licenses. A five per cent. tax on gross receipts is also provided. The bills would limit gloves to six ounces and bouts to ten rounds.

The bill goes to the Senate for concurrence in amendments.
