GEORGE J. DUNLEYY. George J. Dunley, New Market, is one of the boys who has respond-ed to the colors from across the iver. He is filteen years old and his father, who is postmaster at New Market, through Captain Wil-liam F. Harrell, in charge of the local recruiting office, secured special permission from the War Depart-ment for him to enlist. Young Dunley entered the avalry branch of the service and after spending some time in train-ing at Fort Slocum, N. Y. was sent to Fort Marfa, Texas. He is now a member of the Sixth United States Cavalry. The above photograph was taken at Fort Slocum. Young Dunley in a recent letter to his father says he likes the service and urges others to join the army.

the city of Washington. The recent eight-hour victory is the fruit of that treaty. Catter is middle-aged, like the rest. His father, a Confederate soldier, died at Vicksburg. His mother married a rancher in Texas, at the close of the Civil War. Catter, with ability to talk all day and hold his audience intact, is said to be a better orator than he was fireman. And yet he left school and went to live with the cattle when he was nine years old. At twenty he gave up a $100 job as ranch fore-men for a $60 job on a locomotive. Many Skirts

And it isn't often nowadays that such splendid grades of navy blue serge are offered at former season prices. It was our good fortune to have an attractive contract with one of America's best serge mills, and now our good fortune goes to women who want to possess a new skirt.

This is the time of the year when Big Brother Scout and Little Junior Scout need sturdy shoes if they are to respond to the call of the great outdoors. And sturdy shoes cost less in the end than the kind that go to pieces in a fortnight.

We've specialized in youngsters' shoes for the past ten-years—we've studied the weak points of boys' shoes and we believe we have largely overcome those weak points.

It will afford enjoyment to any parent to visit our boys' shoe section, and it will be a matter of keen satisfaction to note the moderateness of prices.
