Acid Stomachs Are Dangerous

Tells Common Sense Way to Treat Indigestion

Medical authorities claim that nearly nine-tenths of the cases of stomach trouble, indigestion, sourness, burning, gas, etc. are due to an excess of hydrochloric acid in the stomach.

"Acid" stomachs are dangerous because too much acid irritates the delicate lining of the stomach often leading to gastritis accompanied by dangerous gastric ulcers.

Ordinary stomach medicines or "after dinner pills" that act only on the stomach walls or lining or artificially digest and force the acid food contents from the stomach to the intestines are inadequate in such cases.

Such cases are well treated by the use of a simple antacid and astringent which will act upon the stomach contents, neutralize the acidity of the food and tend to prevent the further excessive formation of acid.

There is an excellent treatment for this purpose, namely a teaspoonful of ordinary bisulphate of soda taken in a little hot or cold water after eating.

Sufferers from acid indigestion, sour stomach and heartburn should get a small bottle of Bisulphate of Soda (either powder or tablets—never liquid) from any good drugist and they may expect their food will be digested easily by their food will be avoided. If the above directions are followed, Geo. A. Gargas can supply you.—Advertisement.

ation work will be gone over and rules framed which will be acceptable to the authorities of the three States.

The commissioner left today on a visit of inspection to the commercial hatcheries of the State with a view to ascertaining their outputs and what steps they are taking to increase the production of food fish.
