"You may remember that I advised against the making of that loan when Westfall first spoke of it," he said, after he had mastered the preliminary chill of panic. "It was a bad risk—for him and for us."

palm down with a smack upon the desk slide. "No!" he stormed. "What I told you to do was to look up his collateral; and you took a snap judgment and let him have the money! Westfall is your friend, and you are a stockholder in his bankrupt company. You took a chance for your own hand and put the bank in a hole. Now I'd like to ask what you are going to do about it."

Fashions of To-Day - By May Manton

THIS is a simple kimono dress. It can be made to serve as a dress or as an apron or as a negligee. It means only two seams to sew up and there is the least possible labor required to make it. It can be made of any material that may be desired and suited to its special use. Here, it is a morning dress and is made of a washable material held by a sash that matches the trimming. If you wear it over a garment, it will serve as an apron; and in such case you can use a simple belt in place of the sash. If it is made of a pretty kimono crepe or kimono challis and is worn without sash or belt and made without pockets, it becomes a simple negligee that can be dropped over the head in a moment, and is always comfortable and satisfactory.

They Live Here in Harrisburg

Why send your orders for Calling Cards, Announcements, Wedding Invitations, Place Cards, etc., to the larger cities and be obliged to wait for them from ten days to two weeks when you can have them done just as well in Harrisburg in half the time?

out of the debris another structure, formless as yet, but obstinately sturdy, was rising. "I am not going to do what you want me to do, Mr. Dunham—step in and be your convenient scapegoat," he said, wondering a little in his inner recesses how he was finding the sheer brutal man-courage to say such a thing to the president of the Lawrenceville Bank and Trust.

I Am Not Going to Do What You Want. "I suppose you have reasons of your own for wishing to shift the responsibility for this particular loss to my shoulders. But whether you have or haven't, I decline to accept it."

While the big clock over the vault entrance was slowly ticking off a full half-minute the young man whose future had become so suddenly and so threateningly involved neither moved nor spoke, but his silence was no measure of the turmoil of conflicting emotions and passions that were rending him.

"Well!" said the young man. "You can see how it will be. If I can say to the directors that you have already resigned—and if you are not where they can too easily lay hands on you—they may not care to push the charge against you. There is a train west at ten o'clock. If I were in your place, I should pack a couple of suit cases and take it. That is the only safe thing for you to do. If you need any ready money—"

"Warren, I wish you would try to get home early," Helen said, as he was leaving. "Well, what on earth for?" Warren growled unsympathetically. "Oh, I think the people would like to see you, and it's so nice to have you here," Helen said lamely.

Helen thought rapidly. "Couldn't you come for just a little while?" she queried. "Oh, I don't think I could manage it, Mr. Thurston wanted me to telephone you yesterday, but I did want to come so much, and I thought surely I would be all right to-day. But I'm not all right."

His voice, with a hearty hello, nerved her to ask him quickly and she stammered out her plight and her hasty request. "Of course, I know it will be a bore, but if you would only help me out, Warren, I don't know what I wouldn't do to thank you."

U. S. to Aid in Rationing of Smaller Neutrals

Washington, May 19.—The rationing of Holland, Norway, Sweden, Denmark, Switzerland and Spain was discussed to-day at a conference at the State Department between British Secretary Balfour, Secretary Lansing, Secretary Redfield and British and American trade experts. The necessity of limiting exports strictly to those countries, both to prevent their finding their way into enemy territory and to conserve every possible ton of allied shipping for the most essential work, was considered in all phases.

"The Insider"

By Virginia Terhune Van de Water

CHAPTER XII I shall never forget the trip up to Hillcrest on that perfect afternoon in early June. Riding in an automobile was still such a novelty to me that it was an adventure to roll along the country roads between fields studded with wild flowers and through woods still tender in color—not dark green, as they would be later in the season.

James had stopped the automobile again, pointing to the sign on the road. "He can't, father," Tom called back. "You see there's a detour sign here. We can't go the usual way."

"Who lives there, Miss Dart?" the child repeated, appealing to me. She was evidently on the father's side to a lack of knowledge. "I do not know," I said, looking at the place which we had now almost passed. "The appearance of some public place—a hotel, or something like that—perhaps some sort of public house."
