Shows Results of Drilling

The results of weeks of drilling for the parade were seen in the maneuvering of forty Bethlehem Steel Company police. This squad led off the procession, and made a fine

rhen a large number of boys attired in khaki clothing turned out.

Keen Rivalry

Societies made up of foreign-born esidents were applauded all along he line of march. The foreign element turned out in large numbers and each society and organization ried hard to outclass the other. The tivalry was keen and each organization displayed its largest number and best uniforms. The foreign-born lisplayed their loyalty to the American flag when they consented to carry only the Stars and Stripes and lay aside their native flag.
