For almost two years now the railroads have been neglected. This and the heavy traffic over many of the principal lines due to the war has made the railroad system a mere shadow of what it was formerly. American Flotilla Plays Big Part in Destroying German Submarines

Washington, May 25.—Definite information has reached the Navy Department that more submarines are being run down, captured and destroyed than ever before, and although the exact details cannot be divulged, it is known that the American destroyer flotilla, under Rear Admiral Sims, has been playing an active part in the work with the British and French fleets.

One report to-day had it that during the past week, in which twenty-seven merchant vessels were sunk, twenty-eight German submarines were captured or destroyed. It was also said that the amount of food and munitions reaching England from the United States last week was the largest since February 1.

The increased success of the campaign against the U-boats is attributed more to improvements in organization than to any new devices.
