MAYOR FAVORS NEEDED CHANGES IN CITY POLICE

Declares He Will Bring Survey Recommendations Before Council

"While I have not gone over thoroughly the entire report of the survey of the city police department, I am heartily in favor of many of the recommendations which have been made and will bring the question before council to decide on changes," Mayor Charles A. Miller said today. The city's newly-elected executive made this short and terse comment at the conclusion of a discussion of the various changes specifically recommended for the betterment of police conditions in the city in the survey report by the Bureau of Municipal Research, New York.

Supporting the Mayor in any move he makes will be Chief of Police J. Edward Weitzel and Captain of Police Joseph P. Thompson. The latter has charge of the traffic squad of the force.

Probably the three points in the report which Mayor Miller displayed the greatest interest in were the recommendations for civil service for the police department, the need of a proper police court with a magistrate to hear all cases.

Plans Early Action Early action will be taken, Mayor Miller said, on the recommendation to send officers to New York to make a study of the handling of traffic. "I believe the officers should have more training in this work and should make a study of it. I think something needs to be done to give them an opportunity for this. There is no question that the traffic problem is daily becoming more serious."

Another great need, he said, is the need of a police force of fifty. The usual estimate for police protection is one officer for every thousand in a city.

Civil service for the force would certainly add to the efficiency, too. To provide a fitting police court for hearings would be almost an impossibility in the present quarters of the department, the Mayor pointed out, as he expressed an opinion that to do this, the city should have all its office work done in city hall. This would give an opportunity, also, the Mayor said, to provide for separate hearings for women and juveniles.

Wants Open Discussion Mayor Miller will consider all points brought out in the report, and may present it to council next week for an open discussion of the recommendations.

Chief of Police Weitzel highly endorsed the civil service, police magistrate and traffic revision suggestions of the report and declared he will do everything possible to make the present limited force more efficient.

The traffic suggestions will probably be taken up at length with Captain Thompson, of the traffic force. Captain Thompson, in speaking of the need of action, declared the first steps to make revisions will be to restrict parking in narrow streets such as Third and Fourth. To do this, he said, would make it necessary for the city to provide space for parking automobiles, which is being done in Detroit where a number of buildings were bought by the city, razed and the place turned into a parking area.

How the Teams Ran

To Division B, of which Andrew E. Buchanan was manager, went the honors of the day for high contributions, $152,550, and a big silk flag upon the table where Mr. Buchanan sat. The team captained by Francis Jordan Hall, of this division, led all the others with a total subscription of $12,250, of which employees of the Central Iron and Steel Company subscribed $50,000. To his table was awarded a banner and banners were placed also on the tables of the teams headed by E. D. Hilleary, William H. Bennethum, Jr., and David Kaufman, each having led its division in amount subscribed.

The campaigners are at their work again this afternoon and will continue until Saturday noon, when a final luncheon will be held. It is believed that Harrisburg and surrounding towns will subscribe a total of $4,000,000 or more.

An army 240 strong with pockets full of prospects and brimful of earnestness this morning started out to canvass every section of the city in the interest of the two billion Liberty Loan.

Not all of them are regular salesmen, in fact very few of them are, most are very busy men who have gladly volunteered to leave their own work to boost the Liberty Loan, so vital to liberty itself.

Frank A. Vanderlip arrived at noon to-day and went immediately to the Board of Trade Building to address the assembled workers. This evening he, in company with James Francis Burke, of Pittsburgh, will speak at the auditorium of the Technical High school.

Mr. Vanderlip will be the guest of the Harrisburg Clearing House Association at a dinner this evening at the Harrisburg Club. A "war menu" will be served. Each bank in the association will have one representative.

Illustrate Selling Points More than 200 men gathered in the Board of Trade hall last evening for their final instructions before starting out to canvass the town this morning for Liberty Loan subscriptions.

After the lunch, Donald McCormick, who was presiding introduced Jean E. Cunningham, former deputy attorney general, who pointed out not only the necessity of subscriptions for the loan but showed as well the soundness of the investment as a purely business proposition without the attending call of patriotism, which has been to a large extent the power behind the loan.

E. J. Hockenbury, manager of the campaign, gave to the volunteer salesmen the points to be used in making the sales and an outline of the campaign in general, how it would be conducted and the way to be worked for. A dialog between J. Heiner and H. Hoyt Weston further illustrated the different points of a sale that might be brought up by a prospective customer.
