Philadelphia, June 14.—Believing that the United States artillery will be called to active service in France, Richard H. Harte, Jr., son of Dr. Richard H. Harte, now in France with the Pennsylvania base hospital unit, enlisted in that branch of the service, according to information which reached the city yesterday. At Harvard "Dick" Harte is recognized as one of the ledaing atheles. On many occasions he has won honors for Harvard on hardfought athletic fields. Last year he played right end on the Harvard football team and was mentioned as a member of the All-American team. He was also a star baseball and basketball player. He has always been popular among the student body at Harvard.

THURSDAY EVENING.

Copyright, 1917, The Tribune Association (New York Tribune). UNDER PRESSURE

Come, gather 'round me, little ones,
And give heed to my song;
I may detain you quite a while,
And maybe not so long,
I have no idea just now
What I intend to say,
And yet I feel the time is ripe
To kick in with this lay.

There's no dope left on Tris or Ty, On Matty or McGraw; The Johnson boost is overplayed And should be stopped by law. The Baker punch is ancient stuff, Like jeering at the Reds; And panning magnates long age Was good for big-type heads.

So, little ones, you may disperse, I've had my little say;
There may be something new to shoot,
But not by me to-day;
In six or seven years, perhaps,
We'll have a new, fresh crack;
Some sprightly dope in which we moan
For "Wagner going back."

For "Wagner going back.

Poor old Hans! Just as he is well settled in retirement, with his first rest in twenty-two years, they lure him away from his hearthside by hang-fine going up a baseball in front of his nose and showing him the picture of a bat. This is rougher stuff than holding a whisky bottle under the nose of a drunkard who is trying to swear off.

It may be that the American public may be lured into depositing $50,-000 or $75,000 to see Carl Morris and Jess Willard in battle. But, as great as the sucker record is in the Fall Guy Circuit, there must be some ultimate limit. If there is one, it must be a Morris-Willard fight. If this doesn't act as the concluding limit, then the bottom is out, and there's no

THE RECORD

THE TEN YEAR RESIDUE

"How many players," queries a fan, "are left in the big leagues who were regulars ten years ago—as far back at 1907?"

About as many as a normal citizen can count upon the fingers of his two fins. In the National League there are Evers, Ames, Wagner, Doyle, and maybe one or two more.

In the American League, left as regulars, there are Cobb, Plank, Johnson, Collins.

Ten years is no great span in any other profession. In baseball it is about two years beyond the average career of the player. And eight years is giving the average all the best of it.

One might figure thet the average player who was able to pike along would frequently last longest. But the long stayers are nearly all the leading stars—men like Wagner, Lajoie, Mathewson, Plank, Evers, Johnson, Cobb, Crawford. The player with only an average showing for the years to carry far over the winding highway is Red Ames. Red has never been rated as any great pitcher. He has never been listed as one of the stars. But, after thirteen years' service, he is still around, doing his bit, without any vast trouble.

HAVE AT 'EM

When duffers merely miss a shot, I think no more about 'em; But when they try to tell me why, I'd like to rise and clout 'em.

Quite likely there may be a batsman with a greater combination of grace and efficiency than Tris Speaker. But so far we haven't piped him advancing through the mists. Tris is not only a great hitter; in addition, he has a style as clear and clean and rhythmically timed as any batter who ever lived—or died. While on the long average not as great a hitter as Cobb or Wagner, he is far more graceful than either. Ty and Hans are efficient workmen, but neither has the ease and poise at bat which belongs to the smashing Texan, who gives you the idea as he stands at the plate that he could hit any ball pitched anywhere he desires to see it go. And quite a part of the time he does this very thing.

Nap Lajoie left baseball without displaying his skill in a world's series. The big Frenchman never had the chance to mingle with the gaudy October show. And evidence is fast pling up that the same fate will befail Walter Johnson. Washington is further away from a world series than she has been in six or seven years. And all this time Johnson isn't getting very much younger as a pennant aid.

"YOUNG GRIFFO," AT 46. KEEPS CLASSIC POSE

These photographs of "Young Griffo," Albert Griffiths, the greatest boxer the world has ever known, show the remarkable fact that after twenty-five years—some of which have been very hard years—the famous Australian fighter keeps his classic pose. The first photograph was taken about 1892, when Criffo was twenty-one years of age. He had been taught boxing in Australia, by Dan Foley, who learned it from Jem Mace, the great British champion. Mace went to Australia, where he showed many boxers the proper

He is also a basketball player and during the past season jumped center and held down a guard position on the fast Harrisburg Independent squad.

Marysville will be able on Saturday to put the best team on the field that it has had since the opening game with Halifax on May 2. The stonewall infield of last year will again be on duty. Chick Rutter, star third sacker and clubber, who was injured in the Halifax game on May 19, will celebrate his return to the game and will cover the third sack. Moore, shortstop, who has recovered from his recent injuries; Poffenberger on the keystone sack, and Captain Herman on the initial sack, completes the infield.

Reading, but calls upon the representatives of the county, city and railroads to take steps to arrange a plan for abolishing crossings where complaint is apt to arrise. The decision says that the evidence produced does not show the crossing to be of such a dangerous character as to warrant the commission in making an order.

"We couple with our refusal to act now the earnest suggestion to the a uthorities of the City of Reading, to the representatives of the couny, o the officers of both railroads entering the city and to all public service corporations therein," says the decision, "to meet in conference with all individuals like the petitioners and representatives of the City Planning Commission and endeavor to agree upon some comprehensive plans by which the object so earnestly sought by so many good citizens of Reading may be achieved."

14.—The absence of adequate telegraphic connections with Greece has left Berlin without authentic information regarding events there since the news of the abdication of King Constantine was received. The Greek legation has been cut off for several weeks from all communication with its government, receiving only occasional perfunctory instruction of a routine nature by way of Switzerland.

The impression prevails here that the new state of affairs will have no bearing on the military situation in Macedonia. The evening papers publish copious comments and retrolish copious comments a spects lauding Constantine.
