GERMANS ARE UNABLE TO MAKE GAINS

Kaiser Brings Men From Russian Front and Immediately Throws Them Into Fighting; Other Reinforcements Are on Way; Gen. Petain Makes Progress in Champagne; Situation in Russia Growing Brighter

Some heavy fighting is in progress on the Aisne front in Northern France, where the French are entrenched in favorable positions after their notable advances in the spring campaign. The Germans apparently have heavily reinforced their troops in this sector by men brought from the Russian front and one such division was sent into the fighting directly after its arrival, making an attack yesterday between the Allette River and the Lauffaux Mill.

Even this slight gain was partly negated this morning when a French counter-attack resulted in the recapture of a portion of the lost ground. The Crown Prince's troops lost heavily in the fighting and the French captured fifty prisoners. Berlin's report on the attack of yesterday claims the capture of more than 1,500 yards of trenches.

RUSSIAN GIRLS DRILL TO TAKE PART IN BATTLE

Young Women Take Up Spartan Discipline to Weed Out Weaklings

"COMMAND OF DEATH"

Expect to Exceed Men in Fighting Qualities While in Trenches

London, June 21.—A dispatch from Petrograd to the Exchange Telegraph Company says that the Congress of Soldiers' and Workmen's Delegates from the whole of Russia yesterday voted concisely in the provisional government and unanimously adopted a resolution demanding an immediate resumption of the offensive and the reorganization of the army. A war cabinet was formed, including the leaders of the Russian army and navy and technical representative.

Petrograd, June 21.—The "Command of Death," which is the official title of the women's regiment raised by the twice wounded officer, Vera Butchikoff, will be reviewed today by Minister of War Korytkov. The regiment will have its first public parade on Sunday and will leave in a fortnight for the front, probably for the Minsk sector.

The Associated Press correspondent who visited the barracks in Torgvaya street found posted at the gate a Hitler-blue sentry in a soldier's khaki blouse, short breeches, green forage cap, women's ordinary black stockings and sky shoes. The sentry was Maria Skrydlov, daughter of Admiral Skrydlov, former commander of the Baltic fleet and minister of marine. Inside there were four large dormitories, the beds without bedding and strewn with heavy soldiers' overcoats. In the courtyard 500 girls were at drill, mostly between 18 and 25 years of age, of good physique and many of them well educated.

From Better Classes Commander Lieutenant Butchikoff explained that most of the recruits were from the higher educational academies or secondary schools, with a few peasants, factory girls and servants. Some married women were accepted, but none who had children. The girl commander said:

"We apply the rigid system of discipline of the revolutionary army, rejecting the new principle of soldier self-government. Having no time to inure the girls gradually to hardships, we impose the Spartan regime from the first. They sleep on boards without bedclothes, thus immediately eliminating the weak. The smallest and the fattest are punished by expulsion in disgrace."

The ordinary soldier's food is furnished by the guards' equipment corps. We rise at 4 and drill daily from 7 to 11 and again from 1 to 6. The girls carry the cavalry carbine which is five pounds lighter than the regular army rifle. On our first parade I requested any girl whose motives were frivolous to step out. Only one did so, but later many who were unable to stand in an American uniform left us.

"We are fully equipped and are already entered on the list of regiments. Uniforms and supplies are received from the ministry of war, to which we render accounts and present reports. Yesterday the commander of the Petrograd military district reviewed us and expressed his satisfaction. I am convinced that we will excel the male fighters."

Allies Await Building of Great U. S. Airfleet to Blast Out Kaiser's Hopes

London, June 21.—The Government is still unprepared to announce its policy of air reprisals against Germany, but reprisals are likely to be started whenever the Allies' air service possesses such an overwhelming superiority in number of airplanes as to make them possible on an enormous scale without weakening the military establishment.

The American contribution in this regard will likely be most important in determining the result of the war. It is understood the plans contemplates the utilization of aircraft on a scale which will revolutionize land operations even more than the submarines have revolutionized naval warfare.

When the preparations are complete it will be possible to carry out plans to keep German cities, munitions works, iron and steel plants, railways, ports and naval bases under continual bombardment. The Germans have established a precedent in making such warfare legitimate; now they must take the consequence.

Can Harrisburg? Harrisburg can! On the first day of the drive for this city's $100,000 contribution for the American Red Cross the twenty teams engaged in the work collected $55,936.40.

Reports to this effect were made at the noonday luncheon of workers in the Board of Trade building. That the entire $100,000 will be raised is beyond question, according to prominent persons engaged in the campaign.

Miners Do Their Bit R. D. Randall of Lykens, wired the executive committee this morning that the men employed in the mines at that place today agreed unanimously to give an entire day's pay to the Red Cross. This announcement brought cheers from the team workers at the luncheon today.

But other announcements also brought cheers. There was Captain Rodenhaver, of team No. 9, for example, who reported a subscription from a Harrisburg man who has three sons in the army.

Then there was the subscription announced from a well-known young woman who has a sweetheart in the army.

Greens greeted the announcement by one of the team captains that a Harrisburg father with one son in the army, and likely to be at the front in France very shortly, had refused to absolutely give over the fund, declaring that it wasn't up to him to support the boys in France; that, he said, was up to the United States.

Announcement was not made however, of the man prominent in local educational circles who told droves of the Russian army, passed through the city this morning en route to his home in Philadelphia. He was born in Philadelphia where he was educated. At the outbreak of the European war he went to Russia where he was given a commission as lieutenant.

Owing to the largely increased consumption of water as a result of the day and night operation of industrial plants and the increase of domestic use, it is likely that some movement will be made to increase the reservoir facilities.

WOMEN SEEKING PUBLICITY AGAIN TURN TO TREASON

Crowd Tears Down Second Banner Placed Near White House

FOR SUFFRAGE CAUSE

Police Passive While Men Rip Offensive Streamer Down

Washington, D. C., June 21.—The persistence of suffrage sentinels at the White House in holding banners bearing inscriptions interpreted as being "treasonable" culminated in an antisuffrage demonstration there today when a crowd of nearly a thousand persons tore down the banners for a second time today.

The crowd's victory was short lived, however, for in ten minutes two more banners had been obtained from suffrage headquarters near by. Policemen notified passers-by to let the banners alone.

Once earlier in the day, when suffragists appeared with a banner bearing the same inscriptions as torn down yesterday, a small crowd demolished it without much demonstration. Soon after noon, however, the sentinels reappeared with new banners.

Crowd Good Natured The crowd was good natured for the most part, but determined in its work, and did not attack the women who held the banners. Police were forced to clear the sidewalks in front of the White House several times, but always managed to restore the scene of the attack on the banners just a moment too late.

The crowd was not organized and showed no sign of interfering with the sentinels themselves until a woman, modestly dressed, who had
