"I've shown 'em what it means to go up against a winner!"

"But, John! If anything should happen, and we'd have to make good on those options..."

"We're not going to let things happen!" was the grating rejoinder. "I've told you both a dozen times that I'm in this thing to win!"

"Easy, John; hold up a minute!" the colonel broke in soothingly; and Stillings, more practical, closed the office door silently and put his back against it.

"Blood will tell." Blotches and blemishes, like murder, will out, unless the blood is kept pure.

mediately shot his desk cover open and turned on the lights. "That last lot of steel and cement vouchers was made out yesterday, John," he said, slipping the rubber band from a file of papers in the desk.

"Only in the murder nerve. This deal with the options shows that he's all to the good on the business side."

"I don't like to drag a woman into it, if any grave or shape, Bob," he protested; and he would have gone on to say that he had good reason to believe that Miss Richlander's influence over Smith might not be at all of the meliorating sort.

"We do. It's a chance and we'd better try it. He's good for half an hour or so with those vouchers."

"I mean to give him twelve hours in which to pack his trunk and get out of Brewster and the Timanyons. If he hasn't disappeared by to-morrow morning..."

"I know she was suddenly startled lest the child had seen her mother's wedding clothes. But suppose she had? Who should not see them? Was she never to be told of the poor young mother she could not remember?"

"The Insider" By Virginia Torhune Van de Water

"I was quite willing to get away from this huge place, full of gusty ailments. But did not for a moment forget Mrs. Gore, and going to the trunk that contained Grace's baby clothes..."

"I know she was suddenly startled lest the child had seen her mother's wedding clothes. But suppose she had? Who should not see them?"
