"Wouldn't you rather give it up than be taken in?" said one of the police matrons.

"We don't intend to give it up," said Miss Burns. "You have no right to take it. Our position is logical and constitutional."

The police then escorted the two women, who made no further protest, to a private automobile and they were hurried to headquarters. The police detailed to keep the suffragists away from the White House to-day were without batons so that there might be no chance of injury if the crowd attempted to repeat its attacks of yesterday.

At police headquarters the two banner bearers were informed that they had been arrested for blocking traffic and unlawful assemblage. They were released on their own recognizance and no date was set for trial.

Reasonable Argument

It developed that the suffragists took their banners out again to-day under advice of counsel, but that they had sprung a surprise on the police. Instead of banners bearing inscriptions characterized as "treasonable" and "offensive" they bore banners inscribed with phrases from some of President Wilson's addresses to Congress, referring to the dedisome of President Wilson's addresses to Congress, referring to the dedication of America to the rights of democracy. The suffragists issued a statement insisting that Miss Burns and Miss Morey had acted in a peaceable manner and only stood on their rights as citizens "to advance their cause by means of reasonable argument."

Leaders at suffrage headquarters were undecided after the arrest of Miss Burns and Miss Morey whether another effort would be made to display a banner. Someone inclined to favor waiting the outcome of the trial of the two women, but others took an opposite view, and a new banner to say to the Russian mission that President Wilson is dereiving Russia by calling America a

River

The main river will rise to-night and Saturday, except the upper portion will begin to fall Saturday. All tributaries will fall, except the Lower North Branch, which will rise somewhat this afternoon and to-night. A stage of about 5.7 feet is indicated for Harrisburg Saturday morning. As the heavy rains in the interior of New York, Wednesday, were local in character, the effect on the river will be less than estimated Thursday morning. The maximum stage at Harrisburg will probably not exceed 6 feet Saturday afternoon or night.

The banner which led to the arrests to-day carried this sentence from President Wilson's war message:

"We will fight for the things we have always held nearest our hearts—for democracy—for the right of those who submit to authority to have a voice in their own government."

The population of Harrisburg is 96,012 according to the estimates of the 1917 Boyd directory for this city, just off the press. This is an increase of 2,945 over the estimate of last year. These figures are obtained by multiplying the total number of names in the city by 2½. This year the total number of names is 38,045, as compared with 37,267 for last year. This includes not only the people who are actual residents of the population coming to Harrisburg and employed in the industrial plants.

State Police Ordered

Orders were issued to-day to all state police to vigorously enforce the automobile laws, especially against persons who indulge in speeding on state main highways. This action was taken by Major John C. Groome, superintendent of the state police, at the request of Highway Commissioner Frank B. Black, who has been getting complaints about racing and excessive speed on state highways.

In connection with the orders Major Groome sent a letter to the district attorney of every county in the state, asking that they prosecute all cases arising out of arrests by the state police for speeding and other violations of the automobile and road laws, so that the illegal practices complained of may be broken up.

Mobile Units

Each American hospital staff has also organized a mobile unit for service in the casualty clearing stations just back of the firing lines for emergency work during the first days of great battles. The American hospitals present an interesting international study with patients from England, Scotland, Ireland, Australia, New Zealand and Portugal. Steps will be taken soon to increase the various units and bring them up to the strength required for enlarged hospitals. American doctors and iurses have already acquired the tea habit, which they enjoy every afternoon with the convalescent wounded.
