There is much local interest in the formal opening of the new Astrich store, 308 Market street, which will be thrown open to-night just for inspection. No goods will be sold, for there will be so much to see that no one will have time for shopping. Indeed it promises to be more of a social event, as an orchestra has been engaged to furnish music, and everything has taken on a gala appearance. The unique front of this new store, with the deep, roomy promenade at the entrance, and the fine windows paneled in walnut, is considered one of the most attractive in the State, and the interior of the store, charmingly finished in ivory and green appointments, is a diffing haskpround for the heautiful
