THE UMP'S REVERY

The Umpire looked with a cheerful eye
And a grin on his hard, grim face;
It was easy to see that his hopes ran high
As he whistled around the place;
"Has some one slipped you a fancy sum?"
We asked as he passed the bench;
"O no," he said—and continued to hum—
"I'm only waiting the call to come Somewhere to the first line trench."

"Five years," he said, "I have faced the gab From Heinie the Zim's hot breath; Five years I have tackled McGraw and The Crab On the edge of a daily death; So I'm waiting the draft with a soul that's gay Apart from the bitter wrench; Where only gas and machine guns play In a softer, pleasanter, easier fray Somewhere in a first line trench"

New Cumberland, June 30.—A steamboat ride given by the Alumni Association in honor of the graduating class of 1917 of the High school was a great success. The boat, with eighty-three on board left at 8 o'clock It was decorated with flags, class colors and Japanese lanterns. Victrola music was played as the boat went down the river and patriotic sons, school songs and school cheers were given. Classes were represented as far back at 1887. The excursion went down the river several miles and on the return stopped at the island opposite New Market, where the young people enjoyed an hour's dancing. After a brief address by Carl Smith, president of the Alumni Association, in which he welcomed the graduating class, the party went back to the boat where refreshments were served. The boat returned to New Cumberland at 12 o'clock.

"Eliminate all waste" is a message that belongs to sport as well as to The star rarely wastes any motion. He is rarely attached to any surplus devices.

Johnson and Alexander are among the easiest pitching pitchers in the game. Neither carries any waste motion. Ty Cobb often looks lazy and indifferent where he is using up just enough energy to get by, on certain occasions. He saves his big efforts for the big things of the game. Most golf professionals and leading amateurs are quick, easy players. They waste no surplus time in addressing the ball or fussing over a stance or grip. They merely step up and hit the ball.

Pitchers with zig-zag wind-ups, batters with wasteful motions at the plate, golfers with a surplus of practice swings and unseemly waggle, rarely over reach the top.

Back in 1908, nearly ten campaigns ago, Fred Merkle's baseball career s supposed to be closed out when he refrained from touching second se in a decisive contest.

Duncannon, Pa., June 30. — Charle M. Gross has erected an eighty-foo pole at Juniata bridge and he an George E. Boyer have purchased large flag which will be swung the breeze on the morning of July 4, at 9 o'clock with the assistance of the town people. The flag will be raised in honor of the boys of Duncannon and vicinity who have enlisted in the United States service. The following program has been arrang In place of subsiding Merkle worked his way up to stardom.

Last summer when McGraw secured young Holke and the cover to Brooklyn as a substitute to Jake Daubert, the autopsy once again was pronounced over the ex-Giant.

This time he was held to be on his way out to a certainty, one of the Has Beens headed for the trackless Bush.

To-day, a regular with the Cubs, Merkle is one of the best first basemen in the game.

He is fielding exceptionally well, and with the exception of Hal Chase, is outbatting all other first basemen in his league. He is well above Jake Daubert, Ed Konetchy, Luderus, Holke and others, who last year were figured better. Merkle's play has been one of the big features of the Cub revival. He is now only thirty years old, and as he has always been a fine all-around athlete, apparently has several years yet to serve.

Merkle has been one of the pet targets of Fate, but he has proved again that the citizen who insists on fighting back can't be driven from the field.

Baseball worth isn't always a matter of averages. There is more than one sun-blistered athlete who, in the averages, has a better mark than one sun-blistered athlete who, in the averages, has a better mark than one sun-blistered athlete who, in the averages, has a better mark than one superior. He can hit, run, field and, beyond this, baseball knows no harder worker.

As for the ultimate value of records, well, Walter Johnson has lost more games than any other pitcher in the American League. Figure the rebuttal out for yourself. Out of 14 starts Johnson has been dropped 9 times against 5 victories. He is pitching on a weak club, yet both Gallia and Shaw on the same machine have won 5 out of 10.

The directors were unable to post the $550 forfeit and President Jamison served notice that the franchise would be forfeited this evening. His action was forstalled by the board disposing of the lease to Cumberland.

McLeaf Wins Game by

McLeaf, a former Stanley pitcher, tossed last evening for the Rosewood aggregation and won from his former teanimates by a 2 to 0 score. Both teams pulled off a double play. "Fillie" Shaeffer, third sacker for the Rosewoods, saved the contest from being tied in the fifth. A base on balls, followed by Johnson's two-bagger, placed Stanley, runners on second and third. A hot liner bounced over the third baseman's head. Leaping into the air, he caught the ball and put out the runner at first, making the third out. The score:

"Red" Crane is certainly doing things with Minneapolis. He has been laced at third base. In the game on Wednesday he had two doublebaggers and his fielding was a sensation. New Cumberland, Pa., June 30.—
During a storm on Thursday night lightning struck a pear tree and then glanced to the house of John Strock, about a mile from town. Mr. Strock was at work on the Pennsylvania railroad at the time, but Mrs. Strock, five children and their grandmother were at home. They were stunned by the stroke and still feel the effects. A boy, who was asleep on the third floor, was knocked out of his bed. On the second floor the footboard of a bed was torn away, but the occupants escaped serious injury. The bolt of lightning then crashed into the parlor, where it tore off part, of the plaster and knocked away a corner of the plano. There was no fire.

SHIP CANAL MEN ARE LEFT IN AIR Senate Refused to Grant Any

More Money; Nominations Were Ignored

> The Legislature has refused to appropriate any money to the Lake Erie and Ohio River Canal Board and the Senate adjourned without > confirming the appointments of the 1915 members of the board. This means the State has withdrawn its support from the project, although it has invested upwards to $200,000 in the proposition and has nothing to show for it but a majority and minority report, and some data and history.

The board asked the Legislature to appropriate $20,000 and give it the unexpended balance from the last appropriation. The measure got through the House in the batch of appropriation bills which were hurried along. The bill was not allowed to come out of the Senate committee, although the lobbyists for the canal board worked hard to get the legislation reported up to the very last minute before the Senate adjourned Tuesday night, which was the latest the action could be taken in order to pass the bill.

The money was wanted for the following purpowes: "For defraying the cost of printing reports of its work and for the payment of expenses incidental to the maintenance of the offices of the board in the city of Piltisburgh; the payment of travelling expenses of the board and the payment of saleries, fees and expenses of such engineers, draftsmen, attorneys, experits and clerical assistance as the board may deem it necessary to employ."

When the lobby found it could not get the $20,000 bill through, it started a movement for a $10,000 item in the general appropriation bill to pay salaries and Senate leaders were constantly importuned. For a short time the $10,000 item got into the appropriation bill that it overlooked the confirmation of the members of the canal board, who were appointed since the last session of the Legislature. The conferes were making up, but it was eliminated before the measure was printed.

The lobby was so busy trying to get the $10,000 item into the appropriation bill that it overlooked the confirmation of the members of the canal board, who were appointed since the last session of the Legislature. The executive nominations committee of the Senare declined to report the nominations. William P. Gallagher, chief clerk of the Senate, last night officially notified Governor Martin G. Brumbaugh that confirmation
