FUNERAL OF MR. FIRST Funeral services for William B. First, who died Tuesday at his home, 415 Reily street, will be held to-mor-row afternoon. Burial will be made in the East Harrisburg Cemetery. The Rev. George F. Schaum, pastor of the Harris Street United Evangelical Church, and the Rev. S. Edwin Rupp. pastor of the Otterbein United Breth-ren Church, will officiate. Mr. First is survived by his wife and one son, clifford, and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. L. First.

hand must beget confidence in the future work of these men. These young men are going about the serious business in which they are engaged with no other thought than that of thorough preparation for what is ahead of them. Such intensive study and training, accord-ing to experienced army officers, have never before been known and there is being crowded into months what would under ordinary condi-tions have been spread over two or three years. Grilled and Drilled From early morning until taps the student officers are grilled and drill-ed to the end that they may be fit to command at the great concen-tration camps which will be estab-lished later in the summer. Major James B. Kemper, United States Army, who served as lieuten-ant colonel of the Eighth Pennsyl-vania on the Mexican border, is in command of the battalions at Mad-ison Barracks, and he is more than enthusiastic as he tells of the fine work of the upstanding young men who are endeavoring to obtain com-missions under his eve. Survival of Fittest

Among the interesting historic memoriagis at Madison Barracks is a leep good, do not have those chill voices of merchandise that will be placed on sale to-morrow morning, when another big, seasonable Clean Sweep Sale will be inaugurated. The doors will open promptly at 8.30 o'clock, when an underseling event will begin that will break the rec-ords of all previous Clean Sweep Sales for quantity, variety and price reductions. Extraordinary prepara-tions have been made to make this sale one that will vitally interest every discriminating shopper for miles round and about Harrisburg. The big factories and wholesale mar-kets have been culled for values and immense purchases on a spot cash basis have brought to Harrisburg wonderfully large assortments at prices which will mean substantial savings for everybody. Every department of the store is full to overflowing with new and fashionable goods. Those devoted to women's and misses' coats, suits, dresses, skirts, millinery, waists, women's and children's shoes, men's apparel and furnishings are especial-ly worthy of mention.
