The game between Cleveland and Boston meant much to both clubs, and when the Indians won by a shutout it not only pulled the Red Sox out of first place, but it gave Cleveland a chance to advance to third. But this latter change was due to the Browns defeating the Yankees that sent New York down to the bottom of the first division. In the American League the sensation was the overhauling of the great White Sox bunch by the world's champions. But yesterday the White Sox beat the Athletics, while Boston was losing, and are now a game to the good again.

During the week Boston won five out of its seven contests, while the White Sox were dropping five of their nine combats. The Red Sox began their invasion of the west at Cleveland with a defeat.

Other changes in the National League were St. Louis' jump into third place and the Reds' spurt, which led them to a tie with the Cubs' for the covered first division.

Phil Cooney Makes Triple Play Unassisted

unaided, according to records available here.

Cooney gained the honor in a game with Denver, played in that city, when he took a line drive in the sixth inning, tagged a base runner who had started from first and then hopped onto the second bag before another runner could runner out and then hopped onto the second bag before another runner could roward third.

Records show it to be the first individual triple play in five years in organized baseball, and the ninth time it had been made in a period of thirty-nine years. Neal Ball, then with Cleveland, made the last big league triple play unassisted. Ball is now with New Haven, of the Eastern Association.

THE CAGEY DUFFER SPEAKS

I rarely make a hole in par; My mashie often seems to stutter; My driving isn't very far, And I'm no Travis with the putter.

My brassie shot's bereft of thrills; In fact, I very seldom try one; And I grow mottled at the gills When I am forced to pitch a high one

I'm no Gil Nichols off the tee, And (begging Mr. Evans' pardon) I rarely ever grab a three Or otherwise resemble Vardon.

And yet I'm very rarely stung;
The first tee never finds me napping;
For when the ball-a-hole is sprung
I lead the world at handicapping.

WHO LEADS AT THIRD

A few days ago in a fanatical group of argument starters some one opened the debate as to the best third baseman now in baseball. This, of course, was to include all departments of play.

The debate, in its main allotments, was banked around three names—Larry Gardner, of the Red Sox; Frank Baker of the Yankees, and Heinie Zimmerman, of the Giants—with Buck Weaver, of the White Sox, also receiving router profits reporting.

ceiving polite mention.

While the debate was still raging some non-combatant startled the group with this delayed query—"What's the matter with Heinie Groh, of the Reds?" Upon turning back to the averages it was soon found that nothing at all was the matter with Heinie Groh. The facts proved were as follows:

as follows:

1. That he was as quick and as shifty around third as any of them.

2. That he was outbatting them all by a healthy margin.

3. That he had scored more runs than any ball player in either league, two more than Buck Weaver, in second place—more than Cobb, Speaker or any of the others.

Therefore, if Mr. Groh isn't the season's most valuable third baseman so far, who is—and why?

PROTEST CONSIDERED

Sir—I see where the Western Golf Association has forbidden the concession of putts. I protest against this bitterly, for I have developed the unfortunate habit lately of missing the short ones. Are we to have no liberty left at all?

For all that, the rule against the concession of putts is a very good one. We recall several instances where golfers complained bitterly against opponents who forced them to hole out the short ones. Why should they be conceded?

THE FED STAR

In the defunct Federal League the leading batting battle was between Benny Kauff and Lee Magee. These two were considered the stars of the circuit. To-day Eddie Roush, of the Reds, has distanced both. The Red Panther is 58 points beyond Kauff and 103 points beyond Magee. He has a fine chance now to lead the league—an honor that Benny Kauff would give a right leg to achieve.

All of which recalls the astounding fact that the Reds now have four 300 batsmen—the list embracing Roush, Chase, Clarke and Groh— a catcher, two infelders and an outfielder.

With Neale and Griffith only a stride or two in the rear, the Reds are now leading the league at bat, with no less than six men above .280, the now leading the league at bat, with no less than six men above .280, the best showing of the year upon attack.

Matty will achieve no pennant this season, but there is a first class chance that he will gain his ambition to finish among the first four—and there is a fair chance that he may range as high as third.

Gavvy Cravath was supposed to be out upon the gray edge last season. Yet to date he is not only batting over .300, but has scored more runs than any man in baseball, barring only Groh and Weaver. The Cactus has no idea of subsiding yet.

Another entry for the Western amateur golf championship is James Scott Worthington of Mid-Surrey, England. The Western realm is expanding almost beyond belief.
