

PLANS FOR DRAFT ARE ANNOUNCED

Method Fair
Application of the master key makes it possible to apply fairly each of the one thousand numbers drawn to districts with more than one thousand registrants. As a number is drawn it will be added to each of the thousands in excess of one thousand in each district.

Method For Drawing
"Since all registered men stand in an equality of right and duty, the question of priority can only be determined by lot or drawing. It would be possible to have 4,557 separate drawings—one for each group—but since methods would vary and since supervision and absolute insurance against the charge of fraudulent manipulation could not be had in that way, every consideration of expediency and justice urges one drawing in Washington.

The drawing of 25 as the first number of the thousand would fix the first men to appear before the exemption boards in this order: 9025, 7025, 1025, 5025, 2025, 8025, 6025, 3025, 4025, 10025. By applying the master key to the order in which the numbers will be listed in each district will be determined. If the drawing of eleven numbers for the key should result this way: 9, 7, 1, 5, 19, 2, 3, 8, 4, 6.

Order of Examination
"If we were dealing with the ancient draft, we should take every fourteenth man. But we are not conscripting. We are selecting for military service those whose civil service can best be spared. Therefore the question is not 'Who shall go first?' but 'Who shall be first called up for examination?' The district where it is to make a list showing the order of examination.

State of Uncertainty
"Every registrant is in a state of uncertainty. He does not know when he will be called. He hesitates to plant a crop for fear he will not reap it. Employers hesitate to engage his services, fearing they will be but temporary. This condition ought to be cured for the repose of the public mind. It can be cured to some extent by putting every man on the list.

Segregation into Groups
"Obviously no single agency could examine 10,000,000 men. Therefore, the ten million are segregated into groups of suitable size for convenient examination. There are 4,557 of these groups. For each group a board has been appointed to examine for selection. By far the greater number of these groups consist of approximately three thousand men.

names in one list arranged in the order of examination. It is to determine the order of examination in each group.

Method For Drawing
"Exact copies of the cards in each group have been attested and sent to the various state capitols. Lists showing the name of each man in each group and the serial number of his card have been posted in the office of the board, published in the press, and one copy is on file in Washington. Therefore, the chance of any man's number being changed without detection, or of any card being lost beyond replacement.

The Idea of Central Drawing
"Suppose there were just 3,000 names and numbers in every group, it is at once apparent that it would be a very simple thing to have a central drawing that would control the drawing of every name and number in every group of the whole ten million—just put 3,000 numbers into a bowl and draw them out one at a time. Then the numbers drawn out would place the 4,447 cards bearing that particular number at the head of every list in the United States. The second number drawn would put the cards bearing that number second on all the lists, and so forth.

The Drawing by Thousands
"To draw ten thousand separate numbers would take ten hours, and would multiply the chance of error. Moreover, if the '9-thousands', the '8-thousands', the '7-thousands' and the '6-thousands' were scattered all over the master list indiscriminately, the cancellation by boards having small groups would be very tedious and would open the way to numerous errors. All this is easily avoided. Suppose we draw only one thousand numbers. We could then provide that the drawing of the number 878 would also draw the numbers 1878, 2878, 3878, 4878, 5878, 6878, 7878, 8878 and 9878.

An Even Chance
"We should do this but for the fact that this makes it certain that men in the first thousand would be called first, men in the second thousand next, and men with high serial numbers last of all. Since the assignment of numbers is also done by chance, this does not interfere very greatly with the even chance of all men, but it does interfere to some extent. For this reason it was decided to have one drawing to determine the order within any group of 1,000 and another drawing to determine the order in which the sheets of 1,000 each should appear on the master list, instead of arbitrarily assigning the sheets of 1,000 in their natural order. This reduces the whole matter to an absolute equality of chance.

The Details of the Drawing
"One group of numbers, from 1 to 1,000, and a second group, from 0 to 9, have been carefully printed on opaque slips of paper, black on one side, counted and checked. These slips have been rolled up and each put inside a gelatin capsule with the black side out. To insure absolute accuracy of count, the capsules containing numbers from 1 to 1,000 have been counted into ten glass jars in groups of 100 each; the glass jars have been sealed and kept in a safe awaiting the day of drawing.

To Use Blindfolds
"A blindfolded man will then draw capsules one at a time. As each capsule is drawn it will be handed to an announcer, who will break the capsule and announce the number drawn. While he is announcing the number, a second capsule will be drawn and handed to a second announcer, who will break the capsule and read the number. The drawing will proceed in this way until all the capsules are drawn.
