THIRD YEAR OF WAR ENDS WITH GERMAN ARMS HARD PRESSED

man and Austrian empires, featured by the fall of Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg, have led the open rupture of peace in the German reichstag as the fourth year dawns. Portugal and Rumania threw in their fortunes with the entente north of the Volga and the United States entered in April, followed by Cuba and Liberia. Panama pledged the United States her aid in defending the Panama Canal against the German navy bases at our disposal. China, Bolivia, Guatemala and Brazil severed diplomatic relations with Germany. Uruguay expressed her sympathy for the United States.

New Nations Born

Three new nations were born during the year. Poland was created a kingdom under German and Austrian direction. In Mecca the Arabians overthrew the rule of the Turks and declared independence. In the Balkans liberty was restored to Albania, which was established as a republic under Italian political protection and with French military aid.

America Leads Army

The first and second American contingents of troops landed in France on June 26 and 27 and another to-day. Nearly 10,000,000 Americans of military age registered on June 5 under the selective draft law, and from these are being selected the men who will comprise the great contingents which America is planning to send to Europe.

Kaiser Holds On

At the close of the second year the Germans were still unwilling to concede failure in the operations centering on Verdun. After August 3, 1916, the French gained the ascendancy, culminating in the retreat of Douaun, Thiaumont and Fort Vaux, with thousands of prisoners and many guns. By November the French had once more come into possession of the complete circle of the Verdun defenses.

Second Phase Dates Back

The second phase dates back to the commencement of the French offensive—the first Battle of the Somme—in July of 1916. By mid-September this had reached such proportions that the Germans were credited with bringing up seven new divisions against the British and five against the French. It was estimated that 38 German divisions, based on the strength of those German units at that period, about 700,000 men, opposed the British and French on this twenty-mile front. In this battle the British air supremacy became dominant. By November the British and French had taken St. Pierre-Divion, Beaumont-Hamel and Beaucourt and had penetrated German positions for a depth of six miles.

"Victorious Retreat"

In the spring the Germans, anticipating a resumption of the Somme operations, began what has become known as the "Hindenburg victorious retreat" to newly established German lines. In this second battle of the Except for submarine operations, naval writers have found little to engage their attention during the past year.

Germany continued to rely on U-boats. This policy led to unrestricted warfare which drew the United States into the conflict.

U-boats destroyed an estimated gross tonnage of more than 4,000,000 during the year. This included 2,000,000 flying the British flag sunk from February 25 to July 1.

America's destroyer fleet arrived in British waters in May. Without the loss of a ship or a man, American troops to France. Two submarine attacks were made on the transports. At least one U-boat was sunk. American warships took over from British and French vessels the patrol of American coasts. Brazil added her navy to ours in South American waters.

It is estimated that during April, May and June the Germans suffered 350,000 casualties on the western front.

The Russians, having in June of 1916 begun an offensive from the Pripet Marshes to the Rumanian frontier, speedily captured Czernowitza and the region of Bukovina, together with Brody in Galicia, and in August they entered Stanislaw for the third time in the war. These were successes for two main causes: roughly the British won and consolidated ground, captured more than 7,400 prisoners and great stores of artillery. Gaining every objective they placed themselves astride the Ypres-Comines canal, having advanced three miles on an eight-mile front. Portuguese and Belgian troops entered in this offensive. In recent days the fighting there had been confined to raiding operations.
