STEELTON

OLD LANDMARK PASSES AWAY

Chestnut Erected in Early Eighties

With the razing of the old frame buildings at the northwest corner of Front and Chestnut streets passes one of the lankmarks of the early days of the borough. The site was first used for business purposes in the "eighties" when Kendig and Lauman, of Middletown, established a branch lumber yard in the borough in charge of John Malehorn. This industry was carried on only a few years, when Martin Grunden acquired right to the property by purchase and he then started a coal and wood business which he continued for many years up to his untimely death caused by being caught in a circular saw, which inflicted fatal injuries.

After Grunden's death the coal yard was leased by the United Ice and Coal Company, which continued the business until a few years ago when the lease expired and was not renewed. The site has now been purchased by Gaet Muff, who is when the lease expired and was not renewed. The site has now been purchased by Gaet Muff, who is tearing down all the old frame buildings and will replace them with a large brick garage.

Muff purchased the ground from Mrs. Mary Grunden, widow of Martin Grunden. The entire plot measuring 189 by 100 feet will be used for garage purposes.

Board Completes Plans For Opening of Next Session September 4

At the August meeting of the Borough School Board held last evening, arrangements were practically completed for the opening of the 1917-1918 school term, Monday, September 4. In addition to electing janitors of the various buildings, contracts were awarded and Miss Euphemia Miller was elected to teach in the second grade.

Commission, has returned from his vacation.

Crop Figures.—According to the bulletin of the State Department of Agriculture "there is every indication of a bumper corn crop in Pennsylvania and increased acreage and improved growing conditions are favorable for a record production."

The bulletin also states that the peach crop in Franklin and Adams counties will be one of the largest in years. The bulletin says that early season estimates on the oats crop are being set aside by late reports which indicate better conditions and greater production. The reports on the apple crop show a decrease as compared with 1916. Owing to the lateness of the season detailed figures on the wheat production will not be available for some time.

production will not be available for some time.

Ten File Increase. — Records of the Public Service Commission show that ten of about 200 trolley companies operating in the state have filed notices of proposed increases, some advancing from the five-cent base to six and seven cents. Seven companies advanced between May 1 and July 22 and two companies filing will advance their rates late this month or in September. Inquiries made at the commission offices by others indicate that others are planning to file notices. Increases have also been filed by natural gas companies all over Western Pennsylvania and several narrow gauge railroads followed the example of the larger companies. Eastern gas and electric companies have not advanced rates materially.
