"My man," said the Gouverneur Faulkner in a voice that was so gentle as that which a mother uses to a child in severe illness, "I want you to let me sit down on your cot beside you and talk to you about your trouble."

"I got nothing to say, parson. I done it, and I want to swing as quick as the law sends me," answered the poor human from behind his hands without even raising his bowed head.

"I am not a minister, and I've come to talk to you because some of your neighbors and friends think that there may be a reason why you should not be hanged for the death of your brother."

"It is my duty to help them keep you from the penalty of the law, which you may not deserve even if you desire it. Can you tell me your story as man to man, with the hope that it will help you to a reprieve?"

"I done what I had to, and I'm ready to die for it. I've got nothing to say," answered the man with still more of the determination of misery in his voice. "My neighbors don't know nothing about it, and I don't want 'em to. Just let them keep their hands off me, all die when the state swings me."

"So, there is some secret about the matter that you are afraid to tell me?" asked the Gouverneur Faulkner, with a quickness of command in his voice. "What had

Couldn't Even Get Temporary Relief And His Work Was a Burden SAYS TANLAC HELPED HIM

"For five years I tried in vain to get rid of my stomach trouble," says W. H. Harman, of 125 E. Beall street, York, Pa. "I went from doctor to doctor but couldn't get any relief, and I tried medicine after medicine without result. I got so bad that I couldn't get the gas off my stomach. I had to be constantly taking laxatives. I lost my appetite and had become so nervous that I couldn't sleep and I could feel my self growing weaker. I was awful indeed."

"Finally after hearing so many good reports about Tanlac I decided to try it and to my joy it helped me right away. My stomach was quickly restored to health, my bowels became regular and now I feel better in every way than I have in years."

Tanlac, the famous reconstructive tonic, is now being introduced here at Gorgas Drug Store where Carl, Middletown, Co. S. F. W. Pharmacy; Waynesboro, Clarence Croft's Pharmacy; Mechanicsburg, H. F. Brunhouse.—Adv.

"Curse you! What's that to you?" snarled the man as he sprang up from beside the gouverneur and leaped, crouched and panting, against the bars of the cage in which the three of us were enclosed.

The Story of the Young Nurse Who Won a Victory by the Bedside of Death

By JANE M'LEAN

She was a very young nurse, and therefore the horrors of war were more poignant to her than they were to other nurses who had more experience. She had not yet learned to steel herself against suffering. The efficiency that the other nurses gave when she rebelled furiously and did not dare to show it for fear of an unfavorable report.

But it meant an effort to keep from feeling and there were times when she rebelled furiously and did not dare to show it for fear of an unfavorable report.

The day that they brought in some more shattered bodies she was on duty, and she was only a boy, and the doctor met the blue eyes of the nurse across the narrow bed.

"He can't last long, Miss Kearney," he remarked gravely, and his eyes were tender as he looked down at the face of the boy.

"Suppose you stay with him; there's nothing you can do, but he may become conscious for a few minutes before the end, and—"the man hesitated—"well, I'll leave it to you."

In the corner of the ward Miss Kearney drew a screen partially about the bed and sat down close beside the boy. The patient's eyes were hardly eighteen, and his face had been marvellously spared. She smoothed the hair back from the moist forehead and began to sing to him softly. The parson of devotion that had welled up in her breast gave way in a few minutes, however, to a rebellious protest.

"What was it that she had tried to work manhood? It wasn't right, it wasn't right!" She sank down on her knees beside the bed and was suddenly conscious of a pair of very wide, very dark eyes regarding her steadily.

"Hello, there," the boy said, speaking jerkily as though with an effort. The youngest nurse knew how much of an effort it was, but he did not mind. Only the halting speech bore testimony to the fact that he was dying.

U. S. Determined to Get War Supplies For Country and Allies at Fair Price

Washington, Aug. 9.—Purchase of supplies for the allies at the same prices that are to be paid by this government was announced as the determined policy of the administration by the war industries board to-day.

In the return for this concession, the allies will be required to deal reciprocally with the United States, not only in the selling of materials to this country, but in the use of the materials bought here under government fixed prices.

None of these materials can be used by France or England in the manufacture of anything but war munitions, and the whole arrangement, so far as the exercise of the war authority by the war munitions board is concerned.

It is further announced that reasonable profits are to be allowed all producers, but extortionate prices, which the board admits have been charged heretofore, will not be permitted.

TROUSERS FOR WOMEN

Chicago, Aug. 9.—Yes, they're here, trousers for women and not for working women, either. Formal functions this fall and winter will witness the advent of trouser evening gowns. The heralding of the feminine "breeches" came this evening when the semiannual style show of the Chicago Garment Manufacturers' Association opened in the auditorium.

Dangerous Gas and Acids That Hurt the Stomach—Sour the Food Cause Dyspepsia, Indigestion

Recommends A Safe Way To Treat Stomach Trouble At Home.

Many stomach sufferers who are always full of gas and whose stomachs burn with acid after nearly every meal think these things are the RESULT of indigestion when in reality they are the CAUSE.

It is just as foolish to give artificial digestants such as pepsin, etc., to a stomach full of gas and acid as it would be for a man who had stepped on a tack to rub limiment on his foot without removing the tack.

Some stomachs generate too much gas and acid. Gas distends the stomach walls causing a full, bloated oppressive feeling while the acid irritates and inflames the lining of the stomach. Naturally the food ferments and sours, digestion is often delayed and stomach misery is the result. Artificial digest-

Helen had been strangely happy all day, once in a while she felt like this, and inevitably something happened that so reduced her to a fit of the blues that she almost dreaded to enjoy a light mood.

But to-day nothing could dampen her spirits. Warren had been so utterly adorable to her. At breakfast that morning he had said lightly:

"Suppose we go out somewhere this evening?" Helen had just finished remarking that it was Mary's day out.

"You don't really want to go out, dear, do you?" Helen had said. "It's so hot, and I know how you hate going anywhere."

"I don't mind if we don't have to fuss," Warren returned. "I'd really like to take you out somewhere, plan a little surprise in the shape of a dinner and do something or other afterwar. It's one thing going out together when I can wear a soft collar, and we needn't fuss, and another going somewhere to dinner when you have to eat in courses and be politely miserable."

POTATO BREAD—SPONGE METHOD

TO MAKE 4 ONE-POUND LOAVES

3 pounds of boiled and peeled potatoes. 2 1/2 pounds of good bread flour. 3 level tablespoons of sugar. 1 1/2 level tablespoons of salt. 1 cake of compressed yeast. 4 tablespoons of water.

Boil, peel, and mash the potatoes as directed in the straight dough method. After working the dough, set it to rise according to the directions given for the second rising under the straight dough method. Thereafter handle the dough exactly in the same way as is given under the straight dough method.
