Six special reports probably will be submitted. Upon arrival in Russia each commissioner was given a special assignment to cover some particular branch of the new government that he might give the Russians advice and be of particular aid to United States officials upon his return home.

The assignments were as follows: WE SELL AUTOMOBILES on con-signment and charge only 5 per cent No storage charges if car is not sold Auto Transportation School, 27-29 N Cameron street.

in aid to United States officials upon his return home.

The assignments were as follows: Mr. Root, ministry; Charles Edward Russel, Workmen's Council, political parties and Socialists; Cyrus H. McCormick and Charles R. Bertron, finance; James Duncan, labor; John R. Mott and Charles R. Crane, religion; Major General Hugh L. Scott, army; Rear Admiral James H. Glennon, navy.

Workers to Do Share

Mr. Duncan gave an outline of some of the principal features of his report to-day that he might set at rest conflicting stories which have gone broadcast.

"The Russian workman certainly will do his hare," Mr. Duncan said. "He has done it already, and he is entering into the spirit of the new government with a whole heart. When the scheme of government finally is routed out, he will be found to have a big hand in it and he will discharge his duties properly. "Gradually the workingmen are he will discharge his duties properly,

"Gradually the workingmen are assimilating the idea of organization and I expect them to round out some sort of a federation, embracing both skilled and unskilled labor, more similar perhaps to the British system than to ours. While I was sin Petrograd a meeting of twenty-nine trades was held for the purpose of organizing, and the men listened with apparently keen interest to my explanation of how labor operated its organizations in this country.

bor operated its organizations in this country.

Still Dazzled

"Russian workingmen are dazzled by their freedom to organize. Of course under the Czar they had no labor organizations because such bodies were regarded as revolutionary and its members were subject to the severest penalties. It is not unusual for the workers to leave their benches in the middle of the day, call a meeting and advise their employers that they are displeased with conditions.

"Their street meetings are peculiar. Guaranteed the liberty of free speech, they are making the most of it. They have some heated wrangles on street corners. At the close of these debates, however, it is customary for the leading belligerents to exchange cigarets, shake hands and proceed to other meetings.

"The eight-hour day, enforced soon after the revolution, has greatly pleased the workers.

"In many cases wages have been raised a hundred per cent."

Describing the sessions of the Workmen's Council, in which he sat almost daily, for a month, Charles Edward Russel said it compared very favorably with other similar legislative bodies. The greater apparent difference, he said, was in the absence of laundered collars. Only the newspaper reporters wore them, he said.

"The council is very well regu-

"The council is very well regulated," he said. "There is no such disorder as might be expected. While there are more than 1,000 members, 830 with votes and 200 without votes, they are under good control."
