Was Dizzy and Saw Black Spots

Feel Like a New Man Now

says Charles Bellmore, 1157 Cumberland street, Harrisburg. After eating with stomach trouble, after eating would have sharp pains in my stomach and under ribs on right side, at times would get very dizzy and saw black spots. I could not sleep at night, just rolled and tossed all night, on getting up in the morning had a nasty taste in my mouth. My stomach was sore and I felt tired and worn out all the time. I felt drabby and miserable always. I took a lot of medicine but it did me no good. Sanpan had fixed up a friend of mine, so I started to take it, and it has straightened me out. My stomach is working fine. I have no pains under the ribs, I sleep good and feel rested when I get up. My nervous spells are gone, I feel like a new man and I feel it my duty to say a good word for Sanpan. Sanpan is now being introduced at Keller's Drug Store, 408 Market street, Harrisburg, where the Sanpan man is meeting the people in the interest of this great medicine.

SMALL U.S. ARMY. PERSHING'S PLAN OF GEN. PERSHING

American Field Commander Makes Recommendations After Close Study

Washington, Aug. 9.—Reduction of the strength of American army divisions to the European standard of 19,000 men and revival of the old army corps major tactical unit was recommended, it was learned to-day, by Major General Pershing, after a careful study of conditions at the front. American officers are convinced that sound military reasons induced the French and British to adopt to adopt this tactical formation for trench warfare. Reduction of the divisions means a big program for the War Department. Much administrative work already completed probably will have to be thrown aside and done over. General Pershing's recommendations are positive, however, and the department's attitude is the same as it was toward General Funston during the Mexican campaign. The recommendations are positive on the ground, on whom rests the responsibility for actual operations, will be met as far as is practicable. One effect of the reduction of both brigades and divisions would be to create many additional vacancies in the grades of major and brigadier general. It has been found abroad that the 1900-man division in trench warfare is about the maximum that can be handled by one headquarters. Trench fighting is, in reality, siege warfare on a huge scale. Detailed orders and the co-ordination of large bodies or troops and of artillery on a scale never dreamed of in previous wars. All this adds to the task of the corps, division and brigade commanders, each one of whom is conducting a battle of his own on his immediate front.

AMERICAN ARMY GETS READY FOR TRENCHES

[Continued From First Page.] quickly and as thoroughly as possible so that when called upon to act as instructors to succeeding units as they arrive they will be found eminently qualified. A great deal of this earnestness and this will do largely the result of the enthusiasm of the young officers who but recently joined the colors and have taken up the business of war with a courage and determination that means victories to the future of their country.

Under the best circumstances the training of soldiers in the ever-changing methods of modern war is a labor requiring months of patient, painstaking effort. A thousand of the most valiant and valuable men in the British army, for instance, did not put a foot in France until after they had had a whole year of training at home.

On the other hand, Germany called up boys of 17 years at the beginning of last September and sent many of them into the trenches after only six weeks of infantry training, chiefly in marching and close order drill. This was possible because these boys were merely distributed among old, seasoned troops—stop-gaps in the ranks of decimated divisions.

Six months is nearer the ideal training period, but this rule applies to armies which have been fighting three years and have all the machinery established through which the men are passed smoothly and unendingly toward the front.

It is not known how much longer the French instructional division will remain with the Americans. The latter are proving so apt and the training camps are so well established that undoubtedly it will be only a comparatively short time when but a few picked French officers and non-commissioned officers will be retained to assist in the training.
