HOME-READING COURSE FOR CITIZEN-SOLDIERS

(Issued by the War Department and all rights to reprint reserved)

This course of thirty daily lessons is offered to the men selected for service in the National Army as a practical help in getting started in the right way. It is informal in tone and does not attempt to give binding rules and directions.

LESSON 1

You are called to serve as a soldier in the National Army, because that is one of your obligations as a citizen of the United States. The citizens of a republic must always be ready in the hour of need to leave their own homes and take up arms in defense of their rights and principles.

You are without a doubt a brave man, and your family are proud of you. You are called to bear his or her share of the burden. Men and women, rich and poor, all alike must do whatever is necessary and must give up whatever interests or feelings can be permitted to stand in the way of doing their duty to their country.

As a citizen soldier you are chosen for a post of special distinction. America is justly proud of the soldiers of the past who have won for us the rights to-day denied and put in jeopardy by the treacherous attacks of the German government.

Your personal responsibility is great. As warfare is to-day conducted, the individual soldier counts for more than ever before. Your own skill and bravery, no matter how humble your rank, may easily be important factors in deciding whether an engagement is to be won or lost.

Some American Soldiers Americans are well-fitted to meet this test. During the Civil War, at the Battle of Antietam, the Seventh Maine Infantry lay, hugging the ground, under a furious storm of shot and shell.

Mr. and Mrs. James Kendrick Long, of Hazerston, Md., are guests of their sister, Hannah Jenkins, of this city, at the residence of Mrs. Mellie Marion, of 427 South Thirteenth street, is visiting in Johns-town.

U-BOAT CAPTAIN, SLAYER OF SWEETHEART, IN ROMANTIC TRAGEDY OF UNDERSEA WAR

An Atlantic Port, Aug. 7.—Lars Larsen, an elderly man, but still vigorous and erect, who arrived here aboard a small cargo steamer, told a story of U-boat romance which for dramatic interest, is perhaps unparalleled by anything ever narrated concerning the submarine warfare of atrocity.

Mr. Larsen was an officer aboard the Swedish steamship Ada, which was sunk on June 12 last, while she was on her way from Gothenburg, Sweden, to Hull, England. At first Mr. Larsen parried questions in regard to his experience with submarines, by saying that the memories were too bitter, and he was trying hard to banish them from his mind; but finally he consented to speak.

Following is his story: "Before the war began a handsome young German became acquainted with my son Sven, and, before long, was a frequent caller at our home in Stockholm. He fell in love with my daughter Minna, who was sixteen years old and considered very beautiful. The German, Hans von Tuelfighting For Rights There is a third splendid tradition of the American Army which will help to carry forward. It has fought always and everywhere in defense of principles and rights—never in vain.

Protecting the rights of citizens, the American Army which has stood for the English government for a short period in 1776 and 1812, the French government for a brief period in 1798, the Mexican government in 1848, the Spanish government in 1898.

On June 9, 1862, Private John Gray, First Iowa Infantry, mounted on an artillery horse of the enemy and captured a brass six-pound piece, in the face of the enemy's fire, and brought it to a Confederate camp on October 12, 1862.
