Keep Ice Compartment Filled

A full ice compartment preserves lower temperature and more rapid circulation.

Lower temperatures mean better food preservation.

Rapid air circulation carries the dampness and impurities to the ice more quickly.

Keep the ice compartment as nearly filled with ice as practicable.

Never allow it to be less than one quarter full of ice—better still, never less than one-half full as the ice melts faster with less cooling effect when the supply is low.

It is well to use ALSPURE ICE because it is made from filtered water that has been boiled, re-boiled, skimmed and again filtered.
