"With pardon I say that it is not a truth of all women, your excellency," I answered, with pride, as my head went up high at his condemnation of the sex of which I was one.

"You don't know what you are talking about, youngster. They all think I am cold and pass me along, except a few experienced ladies who shall I say?—adventure for graft with me. I've been too busy really to love or let love, but I know 'em, and you don't. Let's stop talking about what concerns neither of us and go to bed. See this young cedar tree? I'm going to throw my blanket across it, and with these extra boughs I'll make a genuine cradle for each of us on the opposite sides of the trunk. Then we'll cover with your blanket and be as comfortable as two midwives in their hammocks in a man-of-war. This is a piece of woodcraft there was a something genuine about him that made her like the man himself. Even his name was singular, Hale Leonard. Somehow it suited him perfectly.

The tea was delightfully informal and afterward Helen learned just how artists really lived. The big studio was where they ate and worked, but there was a kitchen of a sort across the hall, and a couple of tiny rooms just big enough for a cot, it was all quite primitive, but very interesting. Helen wondered if Viva would be willing to live that way, too, and smiled unselfishly only to change her opinion and wonder if the girl wouldn't do anything willingly as she caught the look on Viva's face when she turned back to listen to something the man was saying. Neither Viva nor her artist mentioned the fact that any engagement existed, so Helen imagined that it was still indefinite. Of course there was a possibility that he would be drafted, too, but Helen was certain of one thing, and that was that she most decidedly approved Viva's choice.

MARKET PRICES ARE FORCED UP

Forestallers Drive Butter to Fifty Cents a Pound and Eggs to Forty Cents Doz.

Scarcity of butter and eggs, with early buying by forestallers forced up to-day's market prices. Eggs sold for forty cents a dozen, and butter fifty cents a pound. Farmers blamed egg prices on the high cost of feed, but would not give reasons for the high cost of butter.

NEW HAIR REMOVER IN DEMAND, SAYS DRUGGISTS

Since the virtues of phelactine as a hair remover have been generally known, druggists in this country have been having a really extraordinary demand for this remarkable product. The fact that it actually removes the roots—before one's very eyes—as well as the surface hairs, is of course mainly responsible for its large and increasing sale. The new method is not to be compared at all with the usual depilatory, electrical or other processes. It is entirely safe, non-irritating, non-poisonous, odorless—and instantaneous! A stick of phelactine, used in accordance with the simple instructions which accompany it, can be purchased anywhere on a money-back basis, so certain is it to satisfy and delight the user.—Advertisement.

BOOKS AND MAGAZINES

Howard Brubaker, whose new book "Ranny," has just been published by the Harpers, lives with quite a young man who might easily have been Ranny himself. In fact this son of the author's has many of the qualities of Ranny. The book youngster has been placed in that interesting line of one hundred per cent boys which began with Huckleberry Finn and Tom Sawyer. Last summer it was Tarkington's "Seventeen," and the new candidate is "Ranny."

Rex Beach's hot weather relaxation consists just now in working eight hours a day on a new novel. He is at his place, Manana, on Lake Hopatcong, N. J., for the summer. Early in the autumn Harper & Brothers will publish a new volume of Beach fiction, the first since "Rainbow's End" and "The Crimson Gardenia."

"I thought it was awful, too, when I first saw it," the girl confessed. "But I'm used to it now, and I don't mind."

"They reached the top of the second flight now and turned to the front of the house. Viva rapped with the old-fashioned knocker, and the door was flung open immediately by a tall, slight man with the most tensely eager face Helen had ever seen. As Frances said, he wore tortoise-shell glasses, and involuntarily Helen glanced at his features, which were not handsome, with the exception of his mouth. The dominant characteristic about him was the fact that he was so alive and, Helen thought delightedly, exactly the kind of a man she would have chosen for Viva."

Helen turned from the introduction to an inspection of the place. It had an immense skylight across the front of the building, and the walls were covered with pastel drawings. Gorgeously colored stuffs were draped over a model—stand, and easels of all kinds stood against the walls or were drawn partly out into the room, with half-finished pictures on them. The room was delightfully untidy in a picturesque way, and Viva, who seemed perfectly at home, was already beginning to get tea ready on a little wicker table. Helen dropped down on a couch nearby and turned to the man, who had sat down with her.

"I believe we have some friends in common, Mrs. Curtis," he said in his slow, delightful way of talking. "Jack Parnelle?"

"Oh, do you know Anne and Jack? I haven't seen them for ever so long."

"They're pretty busy," the man returned. "Yes, I know Jack very well; he and I went to school together in Chicago."

Helen liked the way he talked, and the way his long nervous fingers handled the drawings he showed to her. She liked his face and

RHEUMATISM

Physician Believes a Genuine Remedy For the Disease Has

Rheuma, the wonderful rheumatism remedy sold by H. C. Kennedy and all druggists, gives quicker and more lasting relief than other remedies costing many times as much. Rheuma passes the deadly poisonous secretions into the bowels and kidneys from which they are quickly thrown out in a natural, healthy way.

Read what a reputable physician says about Rheuma: "I have made a most careful investigation of the formula employed in the manufacture of Rheuma, and I heartily recommend it as a remedy for all forms of rheumatism. I find Rheuma far in advance of the methods generally employed in the treatment of rheumatism, and altogether different in composition, from the remedies usually prescribed."—Dr. Lyons.

This should give any sufferer from rheumatism confidence to try Rheuma.—Adv.

SANPAN IS BEST OF ALL

says Mr. Henry Pierson, 1118 Cumberland street, Harrisburg, I allied for years with pains in my back and shoulders. This would extend to the cords in my back and they would become stiff and sore.

I felt tired and worn, was drowsy and sleepy and lacked the punch. My appetite went back on me, my nerves went to pieces and on rising in the morning my stomach fell sore and I had a nasty taste in my mouth.

I never felt right and tried the various advertised medicines with no result. I saw a Sanpan advertisement and a man who had been helped who had symptoms like mine, so I gave it a trial and it drove away all pain, nervousness, stomach trouble and I must say, Sanpan is the best of all. Sanpan is being introduced as usual at Keller's Drug Store, 403 Market street, Harrisburg, Pa., where the Sanpan man is meeting the people.—Adv.

Advice to the Lovelorn

Love Cannot Be Forced

Dear Miss Fairfax: Am seventeen, naturally attractive and look about two years older. I have an older sister, eight years my senior. For the past few years my sister has been going out with a crowd of boys and girls enjoying herself innocently. My sister has a great liking for a young man, but he has never shown the slightest sign of reciprocation. He has apparently fallen in love with me, but in view of the fact that my sister likes him, my parents will not permit me to go out with him. Do you think my people justified in acting in this manner?

A constant Reader: I wonder if you are a selfish and conceited girl or merely an honest youngster who happens to have attracted the man her sister likes and who has a sensible recognition of the fact that a man's liking cannot be compelled. Perhaps this man really is interested in you and in that case forbidding him to see you certainly will not add to his liking for your sister. Perhaps, however, you have more or less "stolen" him by youthful coquetry. I know too little about the case to be willing to sit as judge in your court of appeal.
