other non-Socialist parties, the Moscow Industrial group and that part of the army which stands for ruthless army discipline is approaching. The opposition to the premier looks to General Korniloff, the commander-in-chief of the Russian army, as its champion. The line-up of the delegates to the conference is indicated in interviews the Associated Press has had with members of all groups represented at the conference.

At present the name of General Korniloff is on every tongue. Fits coming was awaited with something akin to fear by the extreme left, which still incites against discipline in the army and with open exultation by the opposition group. The import of the demonstration is emphasized by the fact that not one member of the cabinet was at the rallway station, but instead there was an imposing display by the military and civillan admirers of General Korniloff.

Savior of Russia

During the morning General Korniloft's biography and his photographs were distributed free by the organizers of the demonstration. Otherers went about the streets exhorting veterans of the war and particularly cavaliere of the Order of St. George to go to the railway station, explaining to them that duty complete every particite man to support the "destined savior of Russia," from foreign defeat and internal disintegration.

When General Korniloff alighted from the train soon after noon he was followed by a bodyguard of Terak Cossacks, gigantic Asiatics in prune colored caftans, leather beits and vast shaggy sheepskin busbles. General Korniloff, who is of Cossack parentage, resembles a Japanese, He is below middle height and off medium size. He has small black eyes and a sparse tartar beard. His manner was grave and modest as he inspected the guard of honor. He spoke to some of the soldiers and each soldier threw a flower under his feet as he passed.

Lacks Fighting Spirit

Mayor Rudnerf welcomed General Korniloff on behalf of the city of Moscow. The mayor declared that the general was not only the destinctivitor at the front but the savior of Russia from ruin at home. As General Korniloff marched between lines of soldiers toward M. Roditcheff, the officers drew their swords and the tand played the Marselliaise. Addressing the Russian commander, M. Roditcheff said:

"Russia has all her army wants supplies and a brilliant commander. What she lacks is a fighting spirit in her soldiers. It is you, general, who have the will and the means to restore that spirit."

After kissing M. Roditcheff, General Korniloff made a brief speech, roughly phrased, but impressive by its unpretentiousness.

Looks For Victory

"We expect from Moscow," General Korniloff said, "a message to the army. That message, I hope, will not in this grave crisis be of liberty and equality in the name of which, falsely interpreted, Russias, people have been driven off the right track, but a message of victory and order. For myself, at any sacrifice I shall do all in my power to turn that message into reality. I believe in and I predict the resurrection of our army."

Engineer Cowden also criticised the provision caring for nonassessable properties, declaring Harrisburg has paid $100,000 for paving and improvements, the general public being controlled in a way to contribute toward this.

He then devoted part of his address to the ruling which prevents a city of the thira-class from doing contract work for critizens of corporations, referring to the city asphalt plant which is capable of good work, but which may not be employed to put down asphalt for any outside parties. In speaking or repaving work he also declared there is no reason why property owners should not be assessed for a repaving providing the original pavement had been honestly and capably laid.

Reviews Clark Act
The closing address of the afternoon was made by R. Nelson Bennett, superintendent of accounts and finance, Wilkes-Barre, on "What One city of the third class from doing vania Has Accomplished Under Commission Form of City Government." Commissioner Bennett first quoted prominent statesmen giving their views on city government, among them James Bryce, former British Ambassador of the United States; Lent D. by the local board during this period.

The card also contains several items of interest to the drafted man and the board members, for it states some things that were clouded in doubt.

Last Call te Sheekers
One of these cards will be addressed to each man who falled to appear for a physical examination, and who has been certified for military service by his local board and approved by the district board. It will be the last official notice the Government intends to send to slackers.

Local draft boards are working on the theory the Federal authorities will require them to furnish a man for every man demanded by the quota allotted to them, and that while these slackers are supposed to count on the quota they will not be so considered until they are actually in the hands of the military authorities. In order to take no chances of further delay many boards are calling more men for examination than are needed to fill their quotas, but they will thus be able to expeditiously supply any demands made upon them.

The local boards here are entering now on the fourth week of their work. It is expected that within the next two weeks all the physical examinations necessary to the filling of the county's quota for the first call will have been made. This will make it possible for all exemption claims and appeals to be disposed of by the end of next month, by which time the final number of men to be sent to the mobilization points.

Survey Under Way

This letter follows the decision of the commission in the jitney cases handed down some weeks ago. At that time, the commission announced that it would recommend changes for the improvement of trolley service in Harrisburg and the matter has been given careful study by the transportation experts of the State. Early last spring as the result of a series of editorials and news stories published by the Harrisburg Telegraph the Harrisburg Railways Company agreed to have a survey of its lines made by the heads of the Chamber of Commerce and the Municipal League, the work was undertaken. Most of the points covered by the Public Service Commission, it is understood, were in-

THAT motor-oil "problem" is no problem at all, once you get this simple, primary fact pasted squarely in your hat, to wit:

No matter what car you drive, or when, or where, or how, there is one of the Big Four that is exactly right for that car under certain conditions.

Here's a group of four motor oils, refined and recommended by the oldest and largest manufacturer of lubricating oils in the world. They have proved-up in years of actual road-use.

Under certain conditions, Atlantic Light may be the one oil you should use; under other circumstances, Atlantic Heavy; and so on. Atlantic Polarine is the famous year-round oil that flows freely at all temperatures.

Ask your garageman which Atlantic Motor Oil your car should get. He will put you straight on this lubrication-thing. Ask him for your free copy of the "Why" booklet, or write us.
