CROSSING CASES

Dissenting Opinion by Com- Issues Proclamation Urging missioner Rilling in Mahanoy City Case

"The matter of expense is one of Public Service Commission in a Mahanoy grade crossing case which has just been printed. Mr. Rilling calls attention to the fact that twen-ty-five of the 195 persons killed at grade crossings last year were struck at crossings protected by safety gates.

at crossings protected by safety gates.

"More accidents occur at country than city grade crossings. Great as has been the danger incident to grade crossings in the past, it will be greatly increased in the future, not only on account of the greater use by both the railroads and the public, but also on account of the change of conditions," says he. "The automobile has revolutionized travel upon the public highways of our State. The public not only from our own State but from our sister States now travel by this means and, therefore, go into new surroundings where they have no knowledge of local conditions or the dangers awaiting them. No matter how careful they may be they are subjected at every grade crossing to a certain risk. Our State is spending millions of dollars upon its highways and extends an invitation to all to visit our State and enjoy its scenic beauty and note our great industrial and agricultural development. Our Commonwealth owes to the traveling public the duty to so maintain its highways as to minimize all danger. This cannot be done more effectively than through a policy whereby the most dangerous grade crossings are eliminated and the remaining ones properly protected."

Mr. Rilling says that in the case in point three grand juries condemned the crossing and that he thinks the commission should have adhered to its former action in regard to the crossing.

GOVERNOR CALLS AMUSE MENTS FOR ECONOMIES

People Not to Burden Delivery Systems

The Governor makes half a dozen suggestions for economy in service and in commodities in the following proclamation:

WHEREAS, The National Government has given counsel to our citizens to the end that the greatest economy of service and of commodities shall be practiced by our people, and WHEREAS, It is proper and fitting that each one should willingly in this war crists practice strict economy and lend aid in lessening the cost of necessities and in simplifying the distribution of commodities, and WHEREAS, The burden of delivery now placed upon retail merchants not only increases the cost to the consumer, but adds very materially to the equipment of these retailers;

NOW, THEREFORE, I Martin Grove Brumbaugh, Governor of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, do hereby call upon and urge our people to observe as fully as possibly the following suggestions;

Whenever possible carry home all parcels purchased in any retail store.

Accept uncomplainingly, as a patriotic duty, deliveries that have been delayed in these war times due to the fact that many of the trained forces of the retailers are now in the service of their country.

Do not demand special deliverers of purchased items and so tailers are now in the service of their country.

Do not demand special deliveries of purchased items and so plan as to have as few deliveries as possible.

Do not ask to have goods sent home on approval. Be sure you mean to retain the articles before you purchase them.

In case return is necessary bring back to the store yourself all such goods as are portable; and, in general, plan your purchasing in such ways as will able; and, in general, plan your purchasing in such ways as will reduce the cost of delivery to a minimum, thus serving your country and learning the lesson of personal sacrifice as an essential part of your patriotic support of the general welfare in this war period.

In this war period.

The city is one of the old and well-established ones in New England, with a population of about 175,000. It is an industrial city with many diversified industries, but with no unusual characteristics. Its foreign population, according to the 1910 census, is only 33.5 per cent.

Started in Small Way

The description of the Worcester system follows, in part:

"In 1872 the superintendent of the municipal poor farm began sending a wagon into the city now and then to collect enough garbage to feed the pigs. The work developed with the growth of the city until to-day about seventy per cent. of the garbage of Worcester (twenty to thirty tons a day) is taken to the home farm and fed to 2,000 to 3,000 pigs. The garbage disposal has developed and continued along this line for a longer time than has usually been the case in American municipalities. municipalities. There has been a striking absence of unwise and unsuccessful experiment.

"The home farm consists of about 376 acres owned by the city. In addition, the city leases a farm of 220 acres at a rental of $1,500 a year. The farm is located in the northeastern part of the city. To get to it the garbage teams from the center of the city have to pass over a ridge about 140 feet high.

Divide City Into Districts

"The city is divided into twenty-one districts, from which the garbage is collected twice a week without charge to the householders or businessmen. There is also a special collection for the fish offal and rotten eggs from markets and commission houses, which collection is made daily in special cans with tight-fitting covers. These cans are provided by the dealers. Since this material is not fed to swine but is buried, no revenue is derived from it and it is a direct tax on the scavenger department of $1,760 per year."

"I am simply going out to Reservoir Park and go around the golf course with some of the demon golfers," hissed the reporter, who, by the way, is some hisser! "If I am lucky I will come back in the cool of the evening with my rose fever missing. For, O Boss, let me say to you that when the boys pop out a little fly with their well-known brassies, and override the green thirty yards with their well-known mishle noblocks, then anything within range is roasted. But when, after a foozle, I look wisely at the foozler, show my teeth and make believe that I am not trying to laugh, the result is wonderful. And if at the punchbowl hole I quietly turn my back when the little gullolof ball rolls over the green into the woods then the angry heat of resulting passion will toast me to a turn."

"By the way," asked the c. e., "do you speak German?"

"Not lately," vaudevilled the reporter. "Why?"

"I was just going to tell you a good way to get yourself toasted," said the city editor, "but Monday will do."
