

HOME-READING COURSE FOR CITIZEN-SOLDIERS

(Issued by the War Department and all rights to reprint reserved)

This course of thirty daily lessons is offered to the men selected for service in the National Army as a practical help in getting started in the right way. It is informal in tone and does not attempt to give binding rules and directions. These are contained in the various manuals and regulations of the United States Army, to which this Course is merely introductory.

The average American who has a assigned to him wants to do it. He doesn't care to dawdle over a job and make a mess of it. Nor does he care to make it a half-way job. He is determined to make it all and complete success in the shortest possible time.

It is assumed that you are starting your army training in this American way. Since you are undertaking the of becoming a citizen soldier intend to be a good one. You want to waste any time in the process.

More than that, if you are ambitious and possess fair ability there is no reason why you should always gain a private soldier. It is right as you would want to advance. The army is anxious to have you advance just as soon as you are able.

You will not, of course, become a corporal or sergeant or win higher position until after you have thoroughly mastered the duties of a private. Nor will all the men who would like to win advancement easily obtain it. There is only one way to get ahead in the army, and that is to follow conscientiously to the end the better system of training laid out everywhere.

Your training will be practically the same as that through which your officers have advanced in the early days of military training. Every man in the army must go through it.

Drill Formations
 First, you will be instructed in the drill, as set forth in the army drill regulations. This is the foundation of all your training. It

A Tale From Turkey

Here is a story told many years ago by an English traveler in Turkey, who translated it from the language of that country:

In the tribe of Negedeh there was a wonderful horse, whose beauty and speed were unequalled, and Bedouin of another tribe, whose name was Daber, longed to possess it. Having in vain offered camels and all his gold for it, he at length hit upon the following device—He resolved to stain his face, to clothe himself in rags, to limp as if disabled and thus to play the part of a lame beggar.

In this disguise, he waited on the road for Naber, the owner of the horse, whom he knew was to pass that way. When he saw him approaching on his beautiful steed, he cried out in a weak voice:

"I am a poor stranger! For three days I have been unable to beg, and I have no money to buy food. Help me, and Heaven will reward you!"

The Bedouin kindly offered to take him upon his horse and carry him home. Daber replied:

"Alas, I cannot rise! I have no strength left."

Naber, touched with pity, dismounted, led his horse to the spot, and with great difficulty set the seeming-beggar on his back. But no sooner did Daber feel himself in the saddle than he alighted off, calling out as he rode:

"It is I, Daber!"

Naber called after him to stop and listen. Daber turned and halted at a short distance from Naber.

"You have taken my horse," said Naber, "and since I have had him I give you joy of it; but I conjure you never to tell any one how you obtained it."

"Why not?" asked Daber.

"Because," replied the noble Arab, "another man might be really ill, and men would fear to help him. You would be the cause of many refusals to perform an act of charity, out of fear of being duped as I have been."

Daber was silent for a moment; then, springing from the horse, he begged to be forgiven his deception and his forgiveness. Naber made him accompany him to his tent, where they passed a few days together and became friends for life.

POTATO DON'TS

- 1—Don't injure the selling and storing quality of your potatoes by careless digging.
- 2—Don't glut the fall market and injure your price, market by placing large quantities of ungraded stock on the market at harvesting time.
- 3—Don't ship any frost-damaged potatoes. It is disastrous.
- 4—Don't demoralize the already overburdened transportation facilities by shipping cut potatoes. Unless potatoes are extremely high in price cuts will not bring transportation charges.
- 5—Don't overlook the advantages of "machine sizers." They are proving of great value in many shipping sections.
- 6—Don't expect machine sizers to grade for quality—only human hands can grade out the defective tubers.
- 7—Don't mix No. 1 and No. 2 grade potatoes. There are customers who desire each separately, but do not want them mixed.
- 8—Don't overlook the potato grades recommended by the United States Department of Agriculture and the United States Food
