DRIVE FOR $9,000 STARTS MONDAY

Bethesda Mission Needs Funds to Keep Up Work; Sixty-eight Volunteer Collectors

The start of this big campaign which the Bethesda Mission has planned will begin next Monday.

The campaign will be conducted along the lines that made the Red Cross drive so successful.

Miss Grace Willis is here helping the directors and they expect no trouble in raising the $9,000 for the new dormitory that they are so badly in need of.

The mission is only asking for $9,000 instead of $15,000, as previously announced.

Sixty-eight of the business men of the city who will canvass for the money, and their reports will be received every night at the mission rooms in Second street.

John Fulton, the superintendent of the dormitory, cites the following as a very good example of the work that is being done.

"A boy not seventeen years of age entered the hall last March, just as he was beginning to get on the 'slide'."

He had defrauded his boss out of a hundred dollars and a number of other folks out of small funds.

After sleeping in a lumberyard he came to the services one night and I began talking to him and finally got 'under his vest' and he unraveled and told me his story of the past five months, which was a fright.

We took him in, gave him some eats and a clean bed, and got him a job with the Central Iron and Steel Company.

He worked there long enough to pay off all his debts and pay back the money that he had defrauded his friends of.

He is now reconciled to his father and mother and holds a good position with the Pennsylvania railroad. He is married. It is for work of this kind that the money is wanted.

The work is well organized and well equipped on a small scale but about four times as much room is needed for the amount of work that they will do this winter.
