

TECH HAS MEN IN EVERY ARM

School Hard Hit; Senior Class Smallest, Because of Enlistments, in Years

When the class of 1918 graduates at the Technical High School next spring, many of its former members will not doubt have seen service for Uncle Sam somewhere in France.

Two years ago last spring Edgar Batten came to school one afternoon and announced his intention to join the Navy.

George Bell is already in the South as a member of a medical corps, while Paul Shaub is a yeoman on a battleship destroyer.

Fifteen members of the Technical High School remain as a nucleus around which to construct a music organization during the coming winter.

Mr. Bartley, who has succeeded Mr. Rainey in the promotion work in Harrisburg is instructor in real estate at the school.

Keen rivalry exists between the various branches of the Wharton school, located in Scranton, Wilkes-Barre, Reading and this city as to which will have the largest enrollment this year and every effort will be made to keep Harrisburg to the front.

The schools this year will not be hampered with a large deficit to be made up from the general funds of the university.

WHARTON SCHOOL HERE ASSURED

While War Has Made Many Changes Sessions Will Go On as Usual

That the Wharton Extension School of Finance and Commerce of the University of Pennsylvania will hold classes in Harrisburg this fall as usual is the assurance brought by Professor Thomas A. Bartley.

Starting this evening and continuing every evening for the next three weeks with the exception of Saturdays and Sundays, Mr. Bartley will be at the Chamber of Commerce rooms from 7 until 9 to receive applications and to give information relating to the work of the school.

Opening of Fourth Year This fall marks the beginning of the fourth year of the Wharton school in Harrisburg, the first class having been enrolled in 1914.

Some changes have been made necessary in the faculty of the school due to the fact that several of the instructors have accepted commissions in the Army or are engaged in other work for the government.

Another popular instructor who will be missed this year is Wendell P. Rainey, formerly of Harrisburg, and who was responsible for the starting of the Harrisburg branch of the school.
