

NAVY AUXILIARY MAY BE FORMED

Red Cross Advised to Organize Branch For Benefit of Seamen

An official communication received at the local Red Cross states that it is advisable that the Red Cross organize a separate auxiliary for the Navy.

At present the Red Cross is making sweaters and knitting as much for the Navy as for the Army, but Secretary of the Navy Joseph Daniels has asked that the separate unit be started in order that members of the Red Cross who prefer that their work be given to the Navy will be sure that it reaches the fine body of youths who have enlisted in the service on the seas.

So far this chapter of the Red Cross has not done anything about organizing the new unit, but will take it up at the next meeting. The local chapter were told this morning that the American residents in China are organizing for war relief work in the East and to aid American troops in France. At Shanghai the organization of the Red Cross chapter has been undertaken by Consul-General Thomas Sammons, and in a concert given by the Red Cross last evening $3,130 was raised. The American residents in Shanghai have made a contribution of $67,87, all of which was raised by public subscription among the population which is composed mostly of missionaries who receive very small salaries.

Maine Votes Against Suffrage, Two to One

Portland, Me., Sept. 11.—Returns received from considerably more than one-half of the precincts in this State indicate that Maine has declared against woman suffrage by a little less than two to one. At 2:30 o'clock the proportion slightly in favor of suffrage.

During the last days of the campaign, both Theodore Roosevelt and Theodore Roosevelt sent telegrams to the suffrage headquarters, urging voters to support equal suffrage. In the strong progressive towns, with one or two exceptions, the vote was as strong against woman suffrage as in more unregenerate communities and the same proved true of the Democratic centers.

HOW TO CHOOSE PROTEIN FOODS

Suggestions For a Rational Basis For Selecting the Foods Most Needed

Washington, Sept. 10.—Since protein is one of the most important food elements which the body needs and in most forms is expensive, housewives should take particular care in the selection of foods rich in protein in order that they may provide this substance in their diet economically.

The best known foods rich in protein include meats, fish, eggs, milk, cheese, legumes, nuts, etc. The protein of different foods varies somewhat in character. It does not make much difference from which materials older persons get the supply of protein, though a variety of kinds is considered desirable. In the case of children, however, milk is the very best source of protein.

Housewives may solve the problems of furnishing the needed protein of the diet economically, says the bulletin, by learning how much protein is provided by the different kinds of food and then choosing the kinds which furnish the most protein for the least money.

Cleveland to Profit By New Coal Prices

Cleveland, O.—Abandonment by the city of its plan to contract for the purchase of 1,000,000 tons of coal on a five-year basis is one immediate result in Cleveland of the announcement that President Wilson has fixed maximum prices for bituminous coal. Instead of receiving bids on a five-year contract the city will now advertise for bids on a one-year supply.

All Real Estate in Colon Is Held by a Railroad

Manzanillo Island contains about 2,000 acres, half of which is occupied by the cities of Colon and Cristobal. The rest is swampy land, which is being filled in from time to time when required for building purposes.

This lack of all private ownership of property has both advantages and disadvantages. It enables the railroad to get rid of old and unsightly buildings on the expiration of leases and gives it also the power to insert conditions in the leases as to the character of buildings to be erected on the lots leased, as well as of the kind of business to be carried on. On the other hand, there is much reluctance on the part of business men to put up substantial structures or permanent business establishments under the short term of the leases. The leases have been amended late-

Aviators May Make Use of Oklahoma Salt Plains

Oklahoma City, Okla.—The salt plains of Oklahoma have been brought to the attention of the nation in connection with a move to have an aviation school established upon one of them. There are several salt plains in Oklahoma, but the largest is located in Alfalfa county near Cherokee lake, and contains about sixty square miles, comprising a vast level desert of salt.

The reports of the State geologist indicate that practically unlimited quantities of salt of commercial value exist in Oklahoma. Very little of the product is now utilized, however, because there is a sufficient supply of Kansas and other mines that have been developed by the big salt industry and for the further reason that most of the deposits of this salt are too far from railroad facilities to make their development at times profitable.

The Boys Have Responded To the Call of Uncle Sam

Young manly fellows, the pick of the nation. Every mother's son of them will fight to preserve the liberty which our forefathers established through the wars of years gone by.

Some of our boys will honor their parents and friends with their bravery in the trenches. Others will show their heroism in the battle among the clouds. The boats that ply the surface or the depths of the sea will quarter many a brave lad who has responded to the call of a World Democracy, from this district. Other familiar faces in the ambulance corps and hospital units will act as messengers of mercy. At the wheel of the mammoth trucks that brave the shell fire between the men at the front and the base of supplies, and in the signal service that keeps the lines of communication open will be scores of Pennsylvania's young men.

In every branch of service, whether on foot or horseback; in the air or on the sea, the boys of Harrisburg and vicinity will be in evidence and live up to the traditional bravery of their forefathers. May their absence from our midst be short, and a Victor's triumphant welcome await them when the battle for a World's Democracy has been successfully achieved.
