GOOD PRICES FOR ADAMS APPLES

Picking of Big Crop of Fine Early Fruit Going Along Rapidly

Gettysburg, Pa., Sept. 14.—Picking of apples in the great apple belt in the northern and western sections of Adams county has begun. Due to an apparent shortage of the crop in some sections of the country the demand for the early varieties in Adams county has become very great and the growers have commenced to harvest earlier than usual. Shipments are going out daily now and most of the apples of the four or five early varieties grown here have been shipped and it is difficult now to buy any of them. Because of the shortage at other places the local growers are receiving better prices for their fruit than in former years. Last year York Imperials, the great Adams county crop, brought on the average $2.50 a barrel. This year they are selling at $3.25 and $3.50 a barrel, the buyers taking the crops from entire orchards at these figures. Early in the summer some growers sold for only $2.65 and $2.75, but in most cases their fruit had been hit by the fall. The perfect apples are getting the high prices easily, and the buyers seem glad to get them.
