HARRISBURG DIVISION LOSES TO SHAMOKIN---LUCKNOW ATHLETES HOLD CELEBRATION

O'ER HARRISBURG

Locals Have Off Day; Atlantic City Wins; Heads Reading League

Baseball in the Philadelphia and Reading Railway League will end this week. Saturday's results brought Atlantic City Division to the top. The seashore aggregation, holding second place by a small margin all season, walloped Port Richmond and now leads the race by half a game. The score was 4 to 0. Pitcher Collins held Port Richmond to six scattered hits, while his teammates were hitting the ball at the right time. Harrisburg Division lost to Shamokin Division, score 10 to 1. The Rutherford representatives could not hit at the right time and played a ragged game in the field. Shamokin Division in a second game won over Reading Car Shops, score 7 to 0. Reading Locomotive Shops lost to Spring Garden, score 6 to 5. The local score follows:

Baseball STARS IN WORLD'S SERIES WHO EXPECT TO FIGURE WHO EXPECT TO FIGURE; THEIR BASEBALL CAREER

Thirteen years ago an undersized twenty-year-old kid pitch-ed his first game of professional ball for Calumet, Mich. He had unlimited nerve, a bush league wind-up and a freak delivery.

He copped this first start, allowing six hits and fanning

This youngster was Eddie Ci-cotte and the freak delivery was the afterward famous kunckle-eleven batters.

The world's record for effective pitching is held by a left-hander who looks like a prep school kid and acts like a sea soned veteran in the pinches. He has one of the best fast balls that ever busted over the plate, superb control, which it took three years to acquire, and a record of allowing only 90 earn-ed runs in 140 innings of big league pitching. His name is Schupp.

He was a big factor in winning

His name is Schupp.

He was a big factor in winning the pennant for the Giants this year and a great aid in their world's record of 26 straight wins. If past performances or dope indicate anything at all, this nervy sensational left hander of McGraw's ought to make world's series history when the Giants and White Sox tear into each other in the big scrap.

Schupp is a good example of what persistency can do for a player. Up to two years ago his big fault was wildness. In the first game he ever pitched for money he gave eight passes. This was in Louisville as a semipro. In 1912, in 365 innings with Decatur, he gave 148 passes. Last year, through sheer persistency, he acquired such good control that he gave only 37 passes all season in 140 innings.

Ferd was born in Louisville, Ky., January 18, 1892. He learned the game in his home town and first attracted attention as a pitcher when he played semipro ball there. At that time, in spite of all his wildness, the amount of sheer stuff he toted attracted attention and the Clucinnai Reds got him but released him without even seeing him.

attracted attention and the Cincinnai Reds got him but released him without even seeing him.
Decatur of the Three I League gave him his first real taste of 'pro' baseball and he won 22 games for them when only 20 years old.

The Giants signed Schupp in 1913 and kept him on the bench
in the McGraw school of bench squatters until 1915, when Ferd pitched 55 innings and proved as wild as a hawk. Last year, however, this young southerner suddenly blazed forth in sensational style and set a world's record for scoreless twirling.
Series fans who have never seen Schupp will get a surprise.
He's the youngest looking twirler in the game and doesn't look nearly as formidable as his record.

He's the youngest looking twir-ler in the game and doesn't look nearly as formidable as his rec-ord.

He is brilliant, nervy, cool, is never bothered when being hit and holds runners to first base better than any pitcher in his league.

To-day, thirteen years later, this same right hander is the most discussed twirler in the game. He is still using a freak delivery but the scribes and bugs call it the "shine" ball and the "sailor." Eddie is the ace of the Chicago White Sox hurling staff and the hope of the south side fans on the brink of what promises to be the most hectic world series ever staged.

In 1904, when a kid, Ed was advised to quit the game and try driving a wagon or something. They said he was too small to be a successful pitcher (he weighs less than 150 lbs.).

Eight years later the Boston Red Sox let him go and baseball mefi said he was through, with a dead soup-bone and the end of his big league career in sight. Now, in 1917, we find him copping over twenty-five games at thirty-three years of age and the leading gunner of his league! "Shine ball" Eddie was born in Detroit, Mich., June 19, 1884, of French extraction. He began playing ball in the grammar schools, starting as an infielder. His minor league experience was gained with Calumet of the Northern Copper League; Augusta, South Atlantic League; Indianapolis, American Association, and Des Moines and Lincoln, of the Western League; The Boston Americans snagged him in 1908 and he pitched for the bean-eating crew until 1912, when Chicago bought him.

Eddie had an earned run average of 5.88 with Augusta in 1905 and alloyed only 1.61 earned runs per game with Chicago in 1912.

In build he is stocky, being five feet nine inches tall and weighing about 170 lbs.; he is a pleasant mannered, good looking chap and packs a wise old noodle under his cap. His craft and ingenuity have kept him in the Big Top when according to all dope and precèdent he ought to be in the baseball boneyard.

Without doubt Cicotte is the biggest single factor in copping this year's flag for Chicago and pitchers of all time.

Schupp is the more brilliant and Cicotte the more experienced. Schupp has as much "stuff" as any pitcher in the game. Cicotte is one of the foxiest, cariest boxmen who ever worked.

Here still the withered lilies lie
Upon each breast;
And over all a peaceful sky,
In azure dressed;
No storm of night that hurries by

No echo of the battle cry
May break their rest.

The big guns roar above them still,
By day and night;
The red Yames Yash by dune and hill
In endless blight;

The Judge said he don't want people writing to him about pending court matters; saying it is their duty to appear in court—open and above board—where the public may see and hear. Also the court said, in substance, that when people do write to the judges and go around the bush to present matters or make requests there is, in the court opinion, the liability of the impression getting out that such matters are not regular. And they are neither regular in court are without the judges and go may be such as any business with the court men court are stoling what we consider a very improper thing. Emigrate to U. S. After War

Adolph Schrech, of this city, has received a letter from relatives in Germany telling him that at the close of the war they are coming to America to live. The letter was written before this country entered the war, and was greatly delayed in transit.

"We will not stay in a country where such things as we find here are possible," says the letter. Mr. Schrech believes that many Germans will come to America to make their homes at the conclusion of the war.
