No More Midyear Examinations For Students at High School

Advertising will not be permitted

Advertising will not be permitted in the Argus, the school paper, this year because of orders issued by the school board. This will reduce the funds of the paper very materially and it will be issued anily every two months instead of every month as in previous years. The price will be the same, due to the "high cost of paper, labor, etc."

Principal Dibble announced that many midyear examinations will be omitted this year, due to the conjested condition existing in school. It is practically impossible to stage examinations for every student in every subject. Students will be passed on their general average for daily recitations without examinations. Wild applause from the student body followed this announcement.

Girls of the junior and senior classes who wish to devote some time to the study of cooking will be given that privilege this winter. Classes in charge of Miss Frances, Hamilton, domestic science teacher, will be organized at an early date. There are domestic science teacher, will be or-ganized at an early date. There are no eligibility rules, except that only juniors and seniors will be admitted. Extra units for this work will not be

What makes economy?

In old France, Jean Rillé was a man of big affairs.

"For my work's sake I will search all the lands of the earth for those men who can use the quill most skilfully," he said. "I must have the best, for then I will have the cheapest."

And thereby did Jean Rillé set down the final word in the common sense of economy.

You wouldn't think of using the quill in business today. There are methods infinitely more speedy and dependable. It is sheer waste to use other means than those which will do the work most efficiently at lowest cost.

The automobile has become a necessary part of the equipment of the men and women of affairs today.

And this new Packard costs not one cent more than is required to efficiently build and market a car of its supreme dependability, comfort, speed and economy of maintenance.

You must have the best, for then you will have the cheapest.

In old France, Jean Rillé was a man of remarkable common sense.

Commercial Department of Gas Company Holds Its Annual Cornbake

The annual cornbake of the com-

The annual cornbake of the commercial department of the Harrisburg Gas Company was held last evening at Summerdale. Eighteen dozen of the finest ears of corn obtainable were roasted in a huge bed of wood embers and served to the office clerks, the meter readers, the collectors and officials of the company who were in attendance. The event was one of the most delightful in a long series of socials.

The supper was served on the porch of the Peters' cottage, one of the largest and most beautifully situated in Summerdale, and beside corn, embraced all manner of cold dishes, hot frankfurters, coffee and apple pie. The corn was roasted by members of the force, the potato salad was the work of the wife of one of the guests and the apple pies were made by another. The corn was pronounced to be fully as good as the salad and the pies, and these latter would have taken prizes at any food show, was the consensus of opinion of those present.

After the supper the guests gathered around the big fireplace of the cottage and sang songs and enjoyed the music of a string orchestra for the remainder of the evening.
