Grind Your Own Flour and Save Much Money

inence.
e cost of the commercial grind-prominence.

The cost of the commercial grinding of grains—not grinding, bolting and discarding a portion of the product but merely grinding the whole grain—is something like one-fifth cent a pound. With wheat at two-twenty a bushel it is worth three and two-third cents a pound. Whole wheat flour ought not to cost more than four and one-half cents. If in practice we have to pay six or seven cents for the product, it is very easy to see where one can save by using the common hand mill.

There are a number of uses for the home mill other than the making of whole wheat flour. The home mill may be used for grinding corn, rye, buckwheat and rice. All these grains, as well as wheat, may be ground in any form from mere cracking to the finest flour. Grains for porridge may be cooked whole, but cracking them hastens the cooking process and makes mastication less difficult. The finer the grain is ground the quicker it will cook, and the owner of the home mill may suit his own pleasure in the matter of making different grades of cracked grains for various purposes.

Corn Flour

It takes about ten minutes to grind one pound of corn to a fine flour for baking purposes. This includes a second run through the mill. The second run is advisable because with the grinding plates tightly adjusted as they must be for fine flour, the strain is very heavy, considerable muscular exertion is required and the grinding is slow. The efficient and easy method is to run the corn through the mill for the first time with loosened plates, thus breaking up the grains into a coarse meal. Then tighten the plates and put this coarse meal through again.

Corn-Meal

Five minutes' grinding with suitably adjusted plates will make one pound of a coarse corn-meal for corn mush or corn porridge.

Whole Wheat Flour

Whole Wheat Flour

Whole wheat flour—fine enough for making loaves or even light pastries—can be turned through the home mill in about four and one-half minutes. Because of the smaller grain it is not necessary to use two grindings as in the case of the corn.

Cracked Wheat

necessary to use two grindings as in the case of the corn.

Cracked Wheat
One pound cracked wheat can be made in one and one-half minutes.

Rice
In these milling tests only the natural brown rice was used. Rice grinds very fast. Being more brittle, it does not tend to® cake" or form soft masses in the mill and delay the process of grinding. A pound of the finest rice flour can be milled in three minutes. This flour may be added to wheat flour in baking or used to make blane mange or custards. Cracked rice is milled in one minute. In this form it will cook much more rapidly than the whole grain or it may be added to oatmeal or corn for porridge.

Toledo, Ohio, Oct. 2.—Speaking to several thousand citizens in Memorial Hall here last night in opening the Liberty Loan campaign in this district, Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo declared that the failure of a single issue of government bonds would be worse for America than a disaster upon the field of battle.

"We must never let that happen," he said.

"A few years ago," he said, "I read the following manifesto issued in Berlin by the League of German Municipalities:

"If money talks, the President of the United States may learn by October 18, when the subscription lists close, that the echo of the new war fund given by the German people will have drowned out completely the clamor of unending protests which his reply to the Pope has given stimulus."

"Let us meet that challenge by a subscription to our second Liberty Loan, on the 27th day of October, nine days after the close of the German loan, which will make clear to the German military despotism that America marshals not alone her brave soldiers upon the field, her invincible navy upon the high seas, her industries throughout the length and breadth of this determined to use them all without stint and regardless of sacrifice to vindicate American rights, outraged too frequently by German infamies.

Calls For a Total Levy of $2,500,000,000 on Business ished its work on the great war tax bill late yesterday, when the Senate, following the example set yesterday following the example set yesterday by the House, adopted the conference report without a rollcall. More than two and a half billion dollars of new it axes are levied by the measure, which has been in the making since last April.

As soon as the bill is engrossed and signed to-day by Vice-President Marshall and Speaker Clark, it will be sent to President Wilson, who is expected to sign it immediately.

Senate discussion to-day was brief, participated in by but few members, all of whom realized futility of opposition. Most of the criticism was upon the second-class postage in-deliberate way with a view of solving it; and I, for one, after twenty years experience in the agitation, hope that some way can be devised to end the controversy for the good of the government and for the good of the periodical publishers and the publishers of daily newspapers.

"I say candidly that I should have preferred to have this part left out of the revenue bill as the Senate left it out, but in view of the fact that the paragraph in reference to the matter does not go into effect until July, 1918, and that Congress which will meet in December next, the Senate conferees yielded on that point also.

tax payers and made them feel that Headquarters Will Be Opened the ways and means committee represented that situation in entire good faith when he informed the conferes that it would be difficult, owing to the impression which existed in the House as to the character of the tax, I most reluctantly yielded. The information committee the conference of the control of the tax is a most objectionable tax to me, yet, realizing that this bill is for the duration of the war and hoping that later on the sources of revenue can be found and it may be that the julieriance tax can be reduced or abolished, I yielded. The postal rates have been referred to by the chairman of the finance committee, Mr. Simmons, who has fairly expressed my own view. All along I have thought that this perplexing and complicated subject could not be safely gone into a war revenue measure which had to be passed quickly. "As the chairman of the committee has stated, the postal rates as embodied in this revenue bill ca., perchance be repealed or amended, next December by the committee on a deliberate way with a view of soft the Post Office Department before it and can consider the question in a deliberate way with a view of soft in the post of Representatives, which has a the general appropriation bill for the House of Representatives, which has the general appropriation bill for the House of Representatives, which has the general appropriation bill for the House of Representatives, which has the general appropriation bill for the House of Representatives, which has the general appropriation bill for the House of Representatives, which has the general appropriation bill for the House of Representatives, which has the general appropriation bill for the House of Representatives, which has the general appropriation bill for the House of Representatives, which has the general appropriation bill for the House of Representatives, which has the general appropriation bill for the House of Representatives, which has the general appropriation bill for the House of Representatives, which has the general appropriation bil
