WHOLE HOUSE, STOLEN PIECE BY PIECE, POLICE DECLARE

Man Held on Charge of Stealing Automobile Gears Accused of Purloining His Summer Home, Built on Island From P. R. R.

The character described in "The Man Who Stole a Meeting House," has apparently nothing on two Harrisburg residents who built for themselves a "comfy" little summer home on a strip of island just across from Hargest Island. Yesterday morning Officer G. W. Fetrow passed some men who were in the act of transferring a kettle filled with junk, on the road near the Harrisburg Academy. After passing the men, Fetrow returned and conducted an investigation. He found that the "junk" consisted of almost 200 pounds of automobile gears. Robert Hodges, who was making the purchase and W. H. Richards, 1920 Fulton street, was the seller. Richards, who is a passenger fireman on the Pennsylvania railroad and is in line for promotion to engineer, was requested to attend court yesterday afternoon. He told about having gotten the junk from Ernest Shiner, Woodbine street, according to Richards, the other man brought the metal, a piece at a time, to the island. When a quantity had accumulated, Richards brought it across in a boat, having previously arranged the sale with Hodges. Alderman Landis held Richards in the sum of $300 for a further examination.

FLAGRAISING AT ORPHANAGE

Knights of Columbus to Unfurled Banner on New Pole at Sylvan Heights

A flagraising with impressive ceremonies will take place at 3.30 o'clock Sunday afternoon at Sylvan Heights Orphanage. The Knights of Columbus has just completed the erection of a seventy-five foot steel flagpole and will present the institution with a large American flag. The address will be made by R. M. Reilly, of Lancaster, and the flag will be presented to the orphanage on behalf of the knights by E. E. Tracy. The Rev. P. E. McDevitt will bless the flag. Music will be furnished by the Municipal Band and the United Catholic choir of Harrisburg and Steelton will lead the patriotic singing. An interesting part of the ceremonies will be the singing of the "Star Spangled Banner" by a selected group of the orphanage children in patriotic costumes, under the direction of the Sisters of Mercy and Miss Helen Eustace of Philadelphia. The uniformed members of the St. James' Cadets of Steelton, the Knights of St. George Cadets and the Housatonic Club will be present and add a somewhat military air to the occasion. The committee in charge of the arrangements is: P. W. Rodenhaver, A. H. Krueger, E. W. Weiss, R. J. Slezak and L. C. Gainer.

GERMAN MASTER SPY FINANCED BY BERNSTORFF

Col. Beary Gives State War Data

Interesting Address Given to the Members of the State Society Yesterday

Col. Frank D. Beary, Acting Adjutant General and the man most spoken of to succeed Adjutant General Thomas J. Stewart, gave the members of the Pennsylvania State Society a notable address upon Pennsylvania in the wars of the nation. At the first luncheon of the winter camp at the Harrisburg Club, yesterday, Colonel Beary showed a remarkable grasp of the subject and was asked many questions by Governor Brumbaugh and other officials gathered about the board.

In the course of his remarks Colonel Beary said: "Pennsylvania has ever been a leader in the defense and maintenance of our country. Prior to the Revolutionary War the Pennsylvania German and the Scotch-Irish associates stood between the savage and the thin line of settlements along the Atlantic seaboard, and the safety and betterment of the colonies depended largely on the courage and steadfastness of these Pennsylvanians. In the Revolutionary War Pennsylvania had her full share in the establishment of the Union, and Pennsylvania soldiers were present at most of the important engagements of this war."

In 1812 it was the Philadelphia built Clipper that carried the flag of the infant United States to all the parts of the world and demanded that the world maintain a respect for it. "In the Civil War Pennsylvania did more than her share. Her soldiers participated in more battles and in greater numbers than the soldiers of any other state, and it was upon the soil of Pennsylvania that the backbone of the Confederacy was broken. Her soldiers defended the most important points in this battle. Pennsylvania was the only state to have a complete brigade of its own troops and men all being from the Keystone state.

"In the Spanish-American War Pennsylvania had a complete brigade of its own troops and men all being from the Keystone state. "Last year during the Mexican border trouble, which might have developed into a serious war, Pennsylvania again came to the forefront and sent a complete division, the only state having a complete division under one command in one camp, on the Mexican border. This division insofar as its organization, arrangement and equipment was concerned, was the most complete body of troops on the Mexican border.

"Now that our country has been compelled to change its policy, Pennsylvania has again responded, a division complete in every particular. Last week the commanding officer at Governor's Island, New York, I was informed by the chief quartermaster there that the Pennsylvania division of the United States Army was the most thoroughly equipped of any of the organizations in the Federal service today, excepting such organizations as have been organized for the completeness of this division was largely due to the generosity of the state government and the forethought and preparation of the adjutant General, Thomas J. Stewart.

"We have sent to Camp Hancock 25,600 men and 837 officers. This division, during the last year, has been changed, and unfortunately many of the regiments with a splendid history, which could not help but encourage its officers and men to great deeds are being disbanded and the men assigned to other organizations. While this is to be regretted, yet sentiment or historical record cannot be allowed to interfere with the efficient organization of a body of men along the lines best adapted to warfare in this day and age. The war has very wisely refrained from interfering with the organization as laid down by the War Department.

In addition to the National Guard which for years has been preparing for any duty it may be called upon to perform for the Federal government, Pennsylvania has furnished for the National Army not the "Draft" Army a total of 60,859 men. Sixteen thousand three hundred and twenty-one of these have been sent to Camp Meade, and about the same number remain to be sent there. Fifteen thousand, five hundred and thirty-nine have been sent to Camp Lee. This number represents 65 per cent of the total number of men to be sent to this camp. Three thousand two hundred and thirty-nine have been sent to Camp Sherman, Chillicothe, Ohio, and this represents 75 per cent of the number of men to be sent to this camp. These men are trained in the arts of war and represent the manhood of the State of Pennsylvania, and I feel sure that with the training they will obtain at these camps, they will be prepared to preserve the honor of Pennsylvania, and to perform the same deeds of valor and heroism in this war as their fellow citizens of the Keystone state have performed in past wars.

"These statistics may be dry subject matter to most of you gentlemen, foreign to you, but I have chosen this subject and present this matter to you with a purpose in view. Each one of you as the head of your department in the State of Pennsylvania can aid in encouraging the organization, the equipment and the training of these soldiers of Pennsylvania, and each one of you can lend his share to making this an efficient organization, which may become the window of God in our movement to carry constitutional government to the farthest ends of Europe."
