SELL RAILROAD FOR OLD IRON

Purchaser Will Dismantle Sixty-Mile Line; Is Valuable

The Cincinnati, Buffton and Chicago Railroad, a sixty-mile road, has been bought by the Senken-Galamba Iron and Metal Company, of Kansas City, Mo., and will be dismantled, according to a statement made by Herman Senken, president of the company, who is now in New York to attend a meeting of the Association of Waste Material Dealers.

Two-Mile Branch to Help Reading Traffic

Reading, Pa., Oct. 13.—To overcome the freight congestion in its local yards, the Philadelphia and Reading Railway Company is considering the construction of a two-mile branch from the Belt Line, which encircles Reading, to a point near Temple, to connect with the East Penn. The new line would avoid the heavy Temple grade. Trains coming east over the Lebanon Valley Railroad could be switched via the Belt Line and the new proposed branch to the East Penn and thence to Allentown and New York without entering Reading classification yards at all.

FIGHT FOR YOUR LIFE

Duty Demands Robust Health

Fight to get it and keep it. Fight—fight day in and day out to prevent being overtaken by ill and ails. Keep wrinkles from marbling the cheek and the body from losing its youthful appearance and buoyancy. Fight—fight with the enemy of youth—old age and its attendant ailments. Fight to get it and keep it. Fight to get it and keep it.

Feels Refreshed and Fit

Had Read of Wonderful Work By Sanpan

"For more than a year my stomach has been giving me a lot of trouble, nothing I ate appeared to do me any good. I had intense pain in my stomach."
 "My nerves were unsettled, my back ached, had pains under shoulder blades then again, my back and neck became sore and lame as though the cords were drawn."
 "In the morning when I would wake up, I felt miserable, worn out, stomach was sore and mouth felt dry."
 "I had been reading of the wonderful work done by Sanpan and decided to try it. Well, it fixed me up fine."
 "Can eat anything, my nervous spells are gone, do not get those severe pains in back or shoulders, neck does not get stiff, I rise in the morning fresh and fit," says Mrs. Mary Shadow, 1213 Julia avenue, Harrisburg.
 Sanpan is being introduced at Keller's Drug Store, 405 Market street, Harrisburg, where the Sanpan man is meeting the people.—Adv.

 The court to-day signed the divorce decree in the proceedings of Mary M. Aumen against Simon J. Aumen.

Railroad Notes

Plans and specifications for the proposed express transfer station west of Lucknow have been forwarded to Philadelphia for approval.

General Secretary George W. Swelgert, of the Philadelphia and Reading Y. M. C. A., is doing special duty work for the National Y. M. C. A. in acting as escort to selected men enroute to training camps.

James R. Kearney, recently made assistant vice-president of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, was formerly a penny clerk at Altoona.

August Schindler, usher at the Pennsylvania railroad station, who has been on a trip west, has returned home.

An embargo has been placed on all shipments into York except perishable goods.

Bridge inspection on the Baltimore division of the Pennsy was completed yesterday.

The Pennsylvania railroad has been asked to assist in fighting forest fires in Blair county. The Pennsy employees did good work last year.

Francis J. Whelan, chief yardmaster of the Reading, is reported to be in a critical condition. He has been quite ill.

Several fast freight trains have been handled on the Reading in order to permit the hauling of longer trains. Most of the freight lately has been coal and nonperishable goods.

It is understood the Pennsylvania Railroad basketball league will not start this season at Altoona. There will be games, all playing independent teams.

Word was received in Harrisburg to-day that the Baltimore and Ohio strike at Cumberland has been settled.

E. O. Hensen, freight brakeman on the Pennsy, is off duty on account of illness.

C. N. Shelley, freight brakeman on the Pennsy, who has been off duty on account of illness, has resumed his duties.

A delegation of girls appeared at the office of the Pennsylvania relief physicians this morning for examination, most of them successfully meeting the physical requirements to obtain employment and enter the service of the company. The girls are required to pass a stringent examination as the men.

FAVORS WOMEN AS GUARDIANS

Superintendent H. P. Lincoln, of Williamsport Division, Gives Reasons

Women who want to make good in railroad positions will find a good sponsor in H. P. Lincoln, superintendent of the Williamsport division of the Pennsylvania Railroad. He gives them credit for being as good as men in a number of departments. In an answer to a recent editorial in a Williamsport paper favoring women for positions as crossing guardians, Superintendent Lincoln says: "I note in your editorial of Saturday, entitled 'Lady Watchmen' you finished the editorial by the following paragraph: 'It is legitimate development in the movement to conserve man power everywhere and the local railroad officials should not be slow in following the example thus set for them.'"

"I agree with you that women would make good crossing watchmen, one reason being as stated by you—that their attention would be undistracted from their work, when not actually engaged in it, by their customary occupations of idle moments, such as knitting, sewing, etc."

Harrisburg Engineer Is in Reading Hospital

John R. Herbine, assistant road foreman of engines on the Harrisburg division is at the Homeopathic Hospital, Reading, under treatment for injuries received near Womelsdorf. Mr. Herbine was riding on the locomotive of an extra, and in leaning out the cab window was struck by the door of a refrigerator car, which had become loose. His left shoulderblade is broken. Mr. Herbine resides at 437 South Thirteenth street.

NOT CERTAIN GOVERNMENT WOULD WANT HIM FOR ARMY

When a petition was presented to the court to-day for modification of a sentence for Howard Pickett, convicted of carrying concealed deadly weapons, and annoying women, Judge S. J. M. McCarrill refused to consider it. Pickett had been summoned to appear before a draft board in Georgia, but Judge McCarrill would not be sure to send for him. The court expressed doubt as to whether the kind of men such as Pickett had apparently been shown to be, were not wanted for the American Army.

A Select Story About Thomas Bushong, Who Was Really a Very Fine Man, and All That Sort of Thing—It Is Very Odd, Is It Not, How Men Are Sometimes Regenerated?—Yes, Indeed.

It was a very fine morning in October when Thomas Bushong left his handsome home "up town" to make his way to his office "down town," in Harrisburg, Pa., the capital city of our Commonwealth. As he left his handsome home Thomas Bushong snuffed the fine October air in keen enjoyment, for he was a great lover of Nature in all her moods. Mr. Bushong then smiled as he sauntered past the blackbirds rendezvous and heard the cheery calling of seven or eight thousand birds; and he wondered to himself how folks could object to such delightful music, for Mr. Bushong loved dearly all of Nature's handiwork.
 "Good morning, Mr. Bushong," quoth a fresh young voice today, following the example thus set for them.
 "Good morning, Clarence," smiled Mr. Bushong, patting Clarence upon the head. "I presume you are on your way to your studies?"
 "Oh, no, sir," replied Clarence brightly, for he was a polite youth. "I am going to my daily tasks. Mr. Bushong did not utter a word again patting Clarence upon the head. "And where is your father today, Clarence?" In his office, I presume."
 "Oh, no, sir," quoth Clarence. "My father is selling Liberty Bonds today. Have you bought any Liberty Bonds, Mr. Bushong?"
 "My father did not answer immediately, for truth to tell, he had not bought a single bond.
 "My father says it is our duty to buy bonds," continued Clarence.
 "I am going to my daily tasks," Mr. Bushong replied. "I shall again patting Clarence upon the head. "And where is your father today, Clarence?" In his office, I presume."
 "Oh, no, sir," quoth Clarence. "My father is selling Liberty Bonds today. Have you bought any Liberty Bonds, Mr. Bushong?"
 "My father did not answer immediately, for truth to tell, he had not bought a single bond.
 "My father says it is our duty to buy bonds," continued Clarence.
 "I am going to my daily tasks," Mr. Bushong replied. "I shall again patting Clarence upon the head. "And where is your father today, Clarence?" In his office, I presume."
 "Oh, no, sir," quoth Clarence. "My father is selling Liberty Bonds today. Have you bought any Liberty Bonds, Mr. Bushong?"

quoth Mr. Bushong, "and what about you there?"—pointing to a brightly colored paper in Mr. Wood's hands.
 "That is my $100 Liberty Bond," smiled Mr. Wood, who was employed in the shell making plant.
 "Dear me," said Mr. Bushong, "and it is paying you but three and one-half per cent per annum. Why did you not think of this?"
 Mr. Wood looked at Mr. Bushong in amazement, thinking he had not heard aright.
 "Yes, John," remarked Mr. Bushong. "I would have allowed you five per cent."
 John Wood, who was honest as the day was long, soliloquized:
 "Shall I hit this fish?" quoth he, addressing his right arm. "Oh, no, for that would kill him."
 Mr. Bushong stepped back in fright.
 "That's right," said honest John Wood of the shell plant, "keep back; I may slap the taste out of your mouth."
 "You are a rough fellow," quoth Mr. Bushong, "and I shall not talk with you."
 "Th' hell you won't," said honest John Wood, who sometimes, I am afraid, used rough language. "You may not talk to me, but you'll listen to me or I'll disarticulate your frame. Are you a spy, or are you changes his spots? You'll give me five per cent? And what else do you guarantee to keep me in a job? Do you guarantee that I'll be an American when the war is over? Do you guarantee that I'll have a family when this war is over—a family that has all its arms and fingers and senses? Do you guarantee me, with your five per cent, that there'll be a United States of America; and that I won't be shot in the belly for singing the 'Star Spangled Banner' if I want to? Do you guarantee me that I won't be paying a German indemnity all the rest of my life? Do you guarantee that the Kaiser won't pick my pockets? Do you guarantee that I and the rest of the people wouldn't have to pay the Kaiser what his war cost him? 'Course you don't. You offer me a measly five per cent. You say you'll give me $5 a year for my $100. The government'll only give me $3.50—that way, but it gives me all the guarantees you ain't got—all your—your weasel, you."

Honest John Wood stepped, for he was out of breath.
 Mr. Bushong's countenance was grim, for he was badly frightened.
 "The trouble with you is," continued Honest John Wood, "that when you go to church Sunday morning and sing 'Praise God from Whom All Blessings Flow' you think you're done; and you don't have enough patriotism in your hide to light a Japanese match. It's all right to sing that anthem, Bushong, but there's a lot of us helping the
