BRITISH GUNS PREPARING WAY FOR NEW BATTLE

German Heavy Artillery Tries to Hinder Relentless Forward Drive

Heavy artillery actions are again in progress on the Flanders front. London's official report to-day speaks of a strong bombardment of the new British positions on the main Passchendaele-Gheluvelt ridge, south of Broodseinde.

The British artillery now has superior positions from which to work, as there must by this time have been ample opportunity for the heavy guns to be put in position on the dominating high ground taken in the recent advances.

The weather, however, is a decidedly important element in this consideration as the continuation of hard storms not only keeps the ground in a state well high prohibitive of co-ordinated infantry advances, but interferes seriously with the vital aerial observation work.
