the crowded conditions that have existed.

"Many suggestions had been made, but all were bristling with difficulties. Through the co-operation of His Grace and the pastors of this district a way was found at last to establish an ediffice that would provide for the higher education of Catholic boys in this vicinity.

"However, a number of traditions were thrown aside; the situation demanded departures that are radical. Through the combination of these West Philadelphia churches, in overthrowing the old idea of the single parochial view, the result can now be seen in this beautiful building today dedicated to God, and which has been blessed by His Grace the Archbishop.

Impirtant Step

"This dedication means the elimination of parochial lines. I think that this important step makes history for the Catholic church in America. The folicy for which this school stands opposes the policy of one parish. This is the distinct contribution of this school to Catholic education. If this idea is further carried out it will solve tremendous questions now confronting the Catholic church in America to-day.

"A single parish could never build a hospital. Nor could it really construct a school.

"May God speed the day when the staleworn diocesan view disappears and the truly Catholic outlook is taken. When that time comes, a revolution will take place in religious and charitable work among American church organizations.
"Religion is 'necessary to all true education. A nonsectarian system without religion has always been proved fundamentally defective. If Catholic education is to become effective it must be made so first by the laity. The future can never be what it ought to be without a complete system of Catholic university or higher school idea. Without an hold our place, or that influence in American life, unless we can train young men through the university or educative Catholic laity, we will fall to do what should be done."

But there is no expectation that if the Allies stop sending food to prisoners Germany will feed them. On the contrary, it is certain that Germany will allow them to starve. And to prevent this, it is feared that a threat may have to be made to starve German prisoners in reprisal. The exporting of food by Germany to the neutrals is believed to lead to dipromatic incidents of the gravest character.
