Has Three Brothers in German Army But Buys Bonds

Declaring that he had purchased a Second Liberty Loan Bond for the sake of his brothers, a German, who is a resident of Harrisburg, to-day purchased bonds worth $200 from John T. Olmstead's team. The man has three brothers fighting in the German army. His father and mother are living, and reside in Germany. William Andrew Wade was the youngest purchaser. He is just a little over two months old. One Japanese resident of Harrisburg subscribed for $250 worth of bonds. One leader went to a certain town to address a meeting. No one showed up at the appointed time. Securing the services of a band, the salesmap broke up a lodge meeting and recruited out the society leaders of the town. His audience of 300 will purchase bonds worth $50,000, it was announced to-day.

Half of Germany's Fleet of Super-Zeppelins Shot Down After London Raid

Washington, D. C., Oct. 23.—Germany probably lost one-half of her total effective fleet of super-Zeppelins as a result of the raid of October 20 over England, according to official cablegrams received here. All France is exultant over what the dispatches declare to be the greatest defeat administered to an air fleet since the beginning of the war. The gratification is more intense because it is now known that the German raid was an attempt to carry out a fearful threat of vengeance made four days before. On that occasion the German government sent out a warning to both France and England of dire punishment to follow what the Germans declared to be unwarranted and inhuman attacks by French aviators upon peaceful German towns. Reprisals were threatened in an official German communication, which in part reads: "For every brick which falls from peaceful German homes, whole rows of buildings will be overturned in Paris."

BATTLE IN AIR

London, Oct. 23.—Fifteen German airplanes were brought down by British aviators in recent fighting over the battle area in Northern France, says the official statement of aviation issued by the war office last night. COAL PROBLEM CAUSING MUCH CONCERN HERE

Situation is Unusual; Shipments Are Being Diverted to Other Parts of Country. The coal situation in Harrisburg is causing some concern at this time. No two dealers charging the same price, and few dealers are able to supply all grades of coal. Some Harrisburg dealers say that their stocks of egg, chestnut and broken sizes are entirely exhausted. The situation is unusual. Harrisburg, situated within a hundred miles of the best coal fields on earth, may face a serious shortage of the anthracite product. Since administrator Garfield has taken hold of the situation, immense quantities of coal are being diverted from this section to other sections of the country. Don't Meet Need. Harrisburg prices compare favorably with prices in other cities, the

The enrollment now is said to be about 14,000. Surgeon General W. C. Gorkas, of the United States Army, speaking before the doctors, asserted that seven physicians and surgeons are being provided for each 1,000 men of the American forces at the front. Great hospitals are being erected in France, he said, with one bed for every five men or 200,000 beds. Provision is also being made at home for educating the maimed and crippled soldiers and sailors to some suitable trade.

FRENCH SMASH GERMAN LINES FOR GAINS ON 3-MILE FRONT

Petain Strikes Hard With Infantry and Gains Positions Sought to Strengthen Allied Positions

POILUS SEEK TO TAKE STRONG TEUTON FORT

Kaiser's Hosts, by Counter-attack Drive British Back From Outposts in Flanders at Only One Point

What may prove to be an operation of first importance was initiated by General Petain early to-day in the Aisne region northeast of Soissons.

Along a front approximately three miles in extent the French infantry dashed forward, attacking the salient in the German line which curves about its southwestern key-stone, the fortress of Laon. Fort De Ya Malmaison, the German stronghold which baffled the French in last spring's attack, barring their way to the southwest end of the Chemin-les-Dames, is apparently one of the immediate objectives of the offensive. For days past the big French guns have been hammering this front heavily, both the Paris and Berlin reports indicating that some major movement was in preparation.

Good progress was reported early in the day by General Petain, the French forcing their way forward along the whole front of the attack. The taking of Fort De La Malmaison would be a mighty aid in the pushing of an attack on Laon, in an attempt to turn the German line in this region, although it has been considered probable that the main blow will be such an attack which struck further to the east, where the back door road to Laon offers superior tactical advantages.

Virtually all the ground gained in yesterday's offensive in Flanders has been retained by the entente forces. At only one point in southern part of Houtholst Wood were the Germans able to regain any ground in the fighting.

On the eastern front the attempted German operations on the Estonian mainland north of the Gulf of Riga apparently have not progressed as favorably as the naval prelude and the fighting for possession of the outlying islands. Petrograd to-day reports that an effort by the Germans to effect a second landing on the coast about eight miles north of Werder, where they first put troops ashore, was frustrated by the Russians.

Nellie, Celebrated War Dog, Dies of Wounds Received at Battlefield

Washington, Oct. 23.—Nellie, the celebrated war dog, brought to this country by the Belgian mission, is dead. The passing of a member of the mission itself would scarcely cause more grief among those who at the first battle of Ypres Nellie trotted faithfully along beside her owner, a British officer, into the rain of shrapnel and high explosive shells with only the thought of being near her master. He fell, she only wounded, wandered about eight miles north until picked up by Major Osterreith of the Belgian First Regiment of Guides to whom she transferred her allegiance.

In the trenches for many months Nellie lived with the Belgian Regiment, always ready to "go over the top" with her new friends. Twice she was wounded by shrapnel, but she was a wirehair foxterrier of breeding and character and never thought of deserting.

When Major Osterreith came to this country with the Belgian Mission, Nellie came along and thousands of Americans have seen her twirling here and there, her stubby wagging tail acknowledge their attention and kindness.

Now Nellie is dead. The cause, probably, was a combination of wounds and age, but she always will be remembered by her comrades as a real heroine who went into battle without flinching and was faithful to her friends to the very last.

KAISER'S NAVY LOSES FIFTEEN FIGHTING SHIPS

Preparation For Great Sea Battle With Allied Fleet Made by Germany in Sending Large Numbers of Submarines and Destroyers to Guard Rear of Warships Attacking Russian Seaports

Fifteen German fighting ships, including two dreadnaughts, were put out of action by the Russians during the actions last week in and around the islands at the head of the Gulf of Riga. The Russian admiralty says the ultimate fate of the larger ships is not known but that it has been established the Germans lost at least six torpedoboats.

The overwhelming superiority of the German naval forces told, however, and the Russians were forced to retire with their units intact, except for the battleship Slava and a large destroyer. The Russians are now protecting the southern entrance to the Gulf of Finland, where it is reported German submarines have been observed. Oesel, Moon and Dago Islands are now completely in the possession of the Germans, who claim also the capture of 20,000
