

SERVICE FLAG HAS 18 STARS

That Number of Employees of The Telegraph Printing Co. in Service; More Going

A beautiful service flag with eighteen stars occupies a proud position on the front of the Harrisburg Telegraph building. The big emblem, the body of which is red, with stars of blue on a center of white, flaunts itself in the breeze as a mute testimony to the fact that, at this time, eighteen young men from the Telegraph Printing Company have given themselves to fight America's battle for democracy.

Previous to the entry of this country into the conflict which has shattered Europe, the Telegraph was represented through its employees on the Mexican border. Then came the clarion call from President Wilson, in his address of April 2, 1917, "For the rights and liberties of small nations, for a universal dominion of right by such a concert of free peoples as shall bring peace and safety to all nations and make the world at last free." In response to this call practically every department of the big publishing house responded.

Those Who Have Gone The list of those who have enlisted from this plant include Captain E. J. Stackpole, Jr., training camp, National Army; Lieutenant H. A. Sanders, Truck Company No. 6, Army; Lieutenant J. W. Dwyer, Cavalry; Frank Redeker, United States Engineers; Clifford Morton, Company I, Eighth Regiment; William E. Mower, Company T, Eighth Regiment; Samuel Wightman, National Army; Samuel Koplovitz, Company K, Eighth Regiment; William Brown, Officers Training Camp; William H. Stackpole, Battery A, Twelfth United States Artillery; P. L. Hesseberger, Field Service, Army; M. C. A.; L. G. Hertzler, officers camp, National Roundley, Aero Corps, now in France.

In addition to the above list, many Telegraph employees are enrolled in the Harrisburg Liberty Loan and have themselves in readiness for their country's call when needed.

AGONY OF ASTHMA

New Prescription Gives Instant Relief. Makes Breathing Easy

Thousands of people suffer from bronchial asthma, who, having tried advertised remedies, doctors, changes in climate, etc., without permanent benefit, believe nothing can ever make them well. Yet their case is hopeless. Extensive experiments finally enabled a Worcester, Mass., physician to find a simple, harmless treatment that gave almost immediate relief in even the most stubborn, advanced cases and thousands of former Asthmatics have now used the treatment with wonderful success.

1916-2 April

Again I dreamed of Minna. It was the same dream as before. And this time I am able to recall both dreams. I saw Minna in the company of her father and Sven. Mrs. Larsen, Minna's mother, appeared to be at a great distance and was beckoning Minna to come to her. Minna's arms were outstretched toward me. But when I started to go to her a terrific explosion took place, and after the smoke of it had cleared away Minna was standing beside her mother and waving kisses to me and her father and Sven.

"If there is any meaning at all to the dream," said Fritz when I told him about it, "it is that you will soon meet Franklin Minna." Notwithstanding the reassuring nature of his interpretation of my dreams they have left a profoundly disquieting effect upon me. I cannot get rid of the feeling that they either portend a disaster of some sort to Minna or have reference to one that has already occurred. I do not get rid of the feeling that I had a single scrap, not even the sight of a vessel. It would have been a most insufferably dull day for me if Fritz had not made it pleasant, and even more,orable by detailing to me his amazingly interesting theory about dreams and kindred subjects.

1916-5 April

We sank another English steamship this afternoon and have kept as prisoner her commander. He had made the initial attack without waiting for any demonstration from us. I can hardly blame the man for trying to sink a craft which he must have known would do its utmost to sink his vessel if it got the chance. But, whatever my personal feeling may be, I have no right to suspend the regulation which will probably cost this poor Britisher his life when I turn him over to the authorities at home. I feel doubly sorry for him as he has shown himself to be as fine a gentleman as I ever met anywhere. I am rapidly becoming a nervous wreck, less on account of the constant fighting than on account of the constant fighting than on account of the constant fighting than on account of the constant fighting.

The fight with the Englishman was one of the most tense, exciting we have had. We saw the vessel when she was five miles away. Evidently she did not perceive us until she came to within a mile, when she swung around—star as if to escape and began firing. Half a dozen shells were discharged, all falling short or striking the water on the other side of us. They had two rapid fire guns of good calibre and the range was close enough to have put us out of commission or sink us with a well-directed shot.

Fortunately the only damage we received was from one shell, which glanced off our deck aft, leaving an ugly dent, but not of a serious nature. Halbert's marksmanship made short work of the enemy. The first shot as nearly always, brought the wireless arrangement to the deck. The second one crashed through the side of the vessel and destroyed her machinery.

Never before had any merchantman attack by us fought so perceptibly after being so completely crippled. A third shell sent the water pouring through a gap on the water line amidships. The reason Halbert always seeks this vital spot is to cause a list which will make the guns aboard the stricken vessel inoperative. It was only when the list became so pronounced that the guns could no longer be used that the lifeboats were lowered.

The captain was the last one to leave the doomed vessel. There were tears in his eyes when his lifeboat drew alongside our submarine. They were tears of sorrow for the loss of so fine a steamship. I told him that I regretted that it was not in my power rather to reward than to imprison him for the splendid fight he had made.

Fritz has also become favorably impressed with the Britisher. They had a long dispute in his cabin during the evening meal, which I had invited the captain to share with us. After I had obtained his word of honor that he would not attempt to do anything of a hostile nature, Fritz showed the universality of his accomplishments as well as—what I call it?—his Prussian arrangement. In this discussion, but contending that the English are not thorough even in regard to their knowledge of the English language. The captain sought, as politely as possible, to conceal his annoyance at such an assumption on the part of one to whom English after all is foreign. But in the end he conceded after all Fritz was right.

"There is hopeless confusion not only among educated speakers in England and America," said Fritz, "but even among your grammarians concerning those two words. 'I think not,' said the captain, 'the verb will be used whenever the person performing the act I have yet to find any educated Englishman who does not know that the verb is conjugated 'I will, thou shalt, he shall, &c.' and, on the other hand, 'I shall, thou wilt, he will, &c.' 'Correct,' said Fritz, 'they all conjugate it that way, but when it comes to a practical application they all fall most ignominiously. For instance, captain, you were going to dine in a restaurant, and the matter were entirely a question of your convenience, without any coercion or persuasion on the part of another, would you say 'I will dine' or 'I shall dine' at such and such a place to-night?'"

"I would say 'I shall dine,' replied the captain. 'I think no grammarian would gainsay the correctness of this.' (To Be Continued)

City Invests $50,000 City Council to-day unanimously passed a resolution to invest $50,000 of the funds of the Water Department in the Second Liberty Loan to buy bonds. The resolution was introduced by Commissioner W. L. Gorgan, and after a discussion by the finance and the motion for its passage was seconded by Commissioner W. H. Lynch.

The suggestion that the city invest in the loan was made by Boyd M. Ogelesy, chairman of one of the committees working for subscriptions. The money to pay for the bonds will be taken from uninvested funds of the Sinking Fund Commission.

Meeting Big Success The 500 volunteer salesmen who to-day are canvassing for the purchase of the Liberty Loan last night heard an inspiring address at Chestnut Street Auditorium by Dr. Guy Carlisle, president of the Carlisle Chamber of Commerce.

Donald McCormick was chairman of the meeting and called upon the Rev. Alvin C. Smith, pastor of the Martin Memorial Methodist Church to open the proceedings with prayer. Mr. McCormick told the object of the meeting and then introduced Dr. Lee.

Two Great Fighting Forces "There are two great fighting forces in America to-day" the speaker said in his military talk on the civilian forces. We here at home are as much enlisted in this war as the men who are in olive drab. Whether in the shop, in the factories, on the farms, running great transportation systems, selling goods, or adding up ledgers, we are as great a force in the overpowering of the foe as the men who are carrying guns.—If we are true to our trust, true to the flag and true to our ideals.

"You men are the Harrisburg 'iment of Liberty Bond salesmen. You are the 'shock troops' of the civil, a force in the military line up to you to 'go over the top,' and bring in $4,000,000 for your Uncle Sam. You can do it if you will, and I know YOU WILL!"

Every Prospect Can Buy "Every single prospect you have is a potential bond buyer and it is up to you to get the money. It is one thing for a man to say he loves his country; it is another thing to prove it. Make every prospect on your list prove it and prove it big."

Finest Goods on Market "Liberty Bonds are the finest goods a bunch of salesmen ever went out to sell. Do not waste the pleas of poverty. Not a prospect on your list can conscientiously refuse to buy a bond. They have the money or are earning enough to pay for it on a partial payment plan.

"It is the patriotic duty of all to buy; it is to their own self interest to buy; it is the security is the best in the world."

What Money Will Be Used For "I impress upon the prospects what use will be made of the money," counseled Dr. Lee. "It will be used to equip the American Army; to maintain the Navy; pay the wages of the soldiers and sailors; to construct a great fleet to carry men and munitions from America to Europe; and to create the greatest army in the world. Surely nobody can say that Uncle Sam doesn't need the money."

Raps "Snakes in Grass" Dr. Lee in an uncertain terms scored the people who are going about discouraging others from purchasing Liberty Bonds. "Such are the snakes in the grass, traitors to the Stars and Stripes and no punishment is too severe for them. Twenty per cent. of the people are indifferent to the crying need of their country. It is up to the five per cent. to stir them up and—get the money!"

HUNDREDS TO HEAR DR. FITCH

Will Paint Vivid Picture of Red Cross Work in Battle-Torn Lands

Hundreds will hear Dr. Albert Parker Fitch, of Amherst College, lecture in Falmes Hall to-night.

Dr. Fitch is one of the best equipped lecturers on war conditions and his address will be of great interest to people of all walks of life. One comment on his work, which well illustrates the universal opinion, follows: "Dr. Fitch is all that advance notices from Washington declared him to be. He is a lecturer who can make his audience feel the things he is telling and he had a choice of words which drives home the picture. Every seat in the opera house was taken and there were many who stood in the rear."

"Any person laboring under the delusion that the American Red Cross lecturers on war conditions and his address will be of great interest to people of all walks of life. One comment on his work, which well illustrates the universal opinion, follows: "Dr. Fitch is all that advance notices from Washington declared him to be. He is a lecturer who can make his audience feel the things he is telling and he had a choice of words which drives home the picture. Every seat in the opera house was taken and there were many who stood in the rear."

"The speaker painted a beautiful word picture of the ancient rural villages with a 'calvary' stationed on every hill, and no modern water tank adjacent as he told of the work of reconstructing the decimated villages of France. "The saddest sight in France to-day is the children, Mr. Fitch said. When the American Red Cross came to the rescue they were wandering about like savages, tubercular, scrofulous, suffering from peritonitis and worse diseases. The Red Cross is gathering these tragic waifs into homes and orphanages. He horrified his audience with his description of children who were literally 'shot out of their wits,' the horrors they had witnessed unhinging their minds and they sit vacant-eyed, shuddering spasmodically."

Workman With Shotgun Captures Crew of German Zeppelin Falling From Air

Bourbonne Les Bains, France, Oct. 22.—The L-48, the only Zeppelin to fall into the hands of the allies intact, struck its colors to the shotgun of a local workman named Boiteux. Lieutenant Lafargue of the "ocrocodile" escadrille, winged the Zeppelin, forcing it to land.

About 9.30 o'clock Saturday morning Boiteux was walking in a field with a dog and gun when he heard the sound of motors. He looked up and saw the Zeppelin surrounded by airplanes which were peppering it. The monster was flying very slow and very low. Suddenly the bows dipped into a clump of trees and the airship came to a standstill, subsiding gently across a narrow ravine in the bottom of which runs a brook.

"Immediately," said M. Boiteux, "the nineteen men of the crew clambered to the ground. The last to leave, who I afterwards found was the captain, lined them up in good order and said something to the probably his last instructions. "I at once grasped that he intended to set fire to the Zeppelin and I determined to stop him at any cost. I was about thirty yards away from him. I loaded my gun with buckshot and shouted: "Stop that or I will do so!"

Madam: the Greatest Trimmed Hat Sale in the History of Our Business

Is Now Going On

See Our Immense Window Display!! Note the Money-Saving Prices!!

This is not a REDUCTION SALE—Not a sale inaugurated to get rid of a lot of undesirable hats at low prices.

It is a sale of the NEWEST WINTER HATS at prices that are positively lower than others ask for unsalable hats.

Why can we sell at such low prices—Because we design, make and trim our own hats in our own workrooms. Here you pay only one profit and that profit figured down to the lowest possible point. Our enormous output enables us to undersell and it is generally conceded that you can always get a better hat at ASTRICH'S for less money.

It is impossible to describe the value of a hat on paper—you must see it—the description and prices quoted are for the sole purpose of demonstrating our superiority as to range of styles and wider variety. The hats offered for sale were all made up specially to make this the greatest sale in our history.

Freight Rate Hearing

Washington, D. C., Oct. 23.—The Interstate Commerce Commission last night responded to the plea of eastern railroads for financial relief by reopening the fifteen per cent. rate advance case, so far as the carriers are concerned. The first hearing was set for November 5 here.

In so doing the Commission acted practically on its own initiative, dismissing as "in error" a suggestion made here last week, to the effect that the fifteen per cent. case be "continued for at least sixty days."

WILLIAM SHUTT DIES Williamstown, Pa., Oct. 23.—William Shutt, aged sixty-five years, died on Friday at the home of his brother, Jacob Shutt, of heart failure. He is survived by his wife and two daughters, also three brothers and one sister, Mrs. Thomas Shutt. The funeral was held to-day with burial in the Evangelical Cemetery.

Former Lancaster County Teacher Dies in Kansas

Prof. H. T. Albert

Marietta, Pa., Oct. 23.—Word reached, Maytown of the death of Prof. H. T. Albert, former resident of that place, and in whose honor several years ago, a memorial association was formed and photos of this well-known educator were presented to the association. He died at Durham, Kan., where he was living with one of his children.

Prof. H. T. Albert was born in Lancaster county, and was nearly 89 years old. He had been a sufferer many years from rheumatism, although in childhood he was stricken with scarlet fever that left the lower limbs in such a crippled condition that he was compelled to go about on crutches. He was reared on a farm and followed that pursuit until he began to teach school. His first appointment as a teacher was in the schools of East Donegal township in the fall of 1859, what is known as the Franklin school.

In 1859 he was married to Miss Hester Herr, of Millersville, whom he attended school at that place. He was the father of four sons and four daughters.
