New York, Oct. 27.—A statement of the very large purchases, since the war began, of train equipment for the use of the New York Central Lines, was made here to-day on authorization of Alfred H. Smith, president of the big railroad system.

The facts given out, which include prices and comprise the aggregate of vast transactions, form perhaps the most comprehensive basis for judgment and comparison recently disclosed, and are most significant in connection with various phases of present railroad conditions.

Summary of the grand totals of the tabular statement shows that the New York Central system purchased during the three years and two months since the war began (August, 1914) locometives, freight cars and passenger coaches costing $43,24,736. These same units at present-day prices would cost the companies $193,023,610—just $108,703,874 more money, or an increase in the aggregate of 128,91 per cent!

This this railroad system by prompt, heavy buying when war broke out, and in early preparation against the present existing direction of the companies of the present existing direction of the companies of the present existing direction of the present existing direction of the companies of the present existing directions of the present existing directions of the present existing directions of the present existing direction of the present existing directions and abortage of materials and labor, gained an equity of a cool $100,000,000 — based on present values. FREDERICK F. LEETZ, JR. FREDERICK F. LEETZ, JR.
Frederick F. Leetz, Jr., of 422
South Fourteenth street, has every reason to be proud of the fact that he is the owner of a Second Liberty Loan Bond. Frederick is nine months of age, and while there are several younger children in Harrisburg possessing bonds, few children enjoy the double honor of having a bond to back the boys at the front and a fatter in France. The attractive little boy shown here is too young to know much about it, but while his mother purchased a bond his father is with the Signal Reserve Corps in Uncle Sam's service "somewhere in France."
